YOUNG AND OLD MAKE NAVY PIER SUMMER MECCA

Magic Carpet Whisks All to Wonderland.

Chicagoans yesterday enjoyed a perfect June day. Thousands went to the beaches. Thousands attended the vesper concerts in the forest preserves, and the amateur air meet at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport. Thousands went to the zoos and the golf courses. Highways were lined last night with motorists.

Navy pier offers something of the ide mercy of sun and water that hicago holds out for its larger family hen the melting pot of June begins boil in crowded streets and alleys.

They may set sail here in fantasy om the pier on the three decks of a iant liner and without any worry bout money or clothes touch the port dreams. The water dances along the ull as though the pier were moving.

It might land most anywhere—at e port of Jerusalem, a Polish scene, n the Thames pool, a Baltic shore, Hudson bay, or, by the alchemy of reams, touch an Ozark byroad or a ountain lake where the trembling spen tell the straight young pines he story of last night's storm and iory.

Pier Has Its Moods.

Navy pier has its moods. In the aytime it is given over to family arties disembarking from the Grand venue cars. Mother and father with n assorted brood whose faces glow ith expectation as the droning usic of the merry-go-round comes earer, and the cries of hawkers with eir magic wares and wonderful rizes.

There are bare tables waiting, in heltered nooks or in the sunshine, s the weather demands, and soon the roups are disposed, the papers and undles spread about, the dog and the oungest baby corraled, the older hildren given 5 cents each to spend s they please, and father happily unacking his fishing tackle. There is long cool day of happiness ahead or all of them at no more cost than arfare, and what lure of sweets and enny arcades, baseball games, shootng at ducks flying over impossible harshes, they may indulge.

With dusk comes another mood. Out ome the younger set whose feet will ot stay still. With the stars over the arker waters, with the city like a pangled bracelet strung for their deght, they move like moths to the ame in the direction of the drums nd the moaning of a Negro orchestra ncamped on the deck of a real boat hat is ready to take them on a cruise nowhere for 25 or 50 cents.

The Gang's All Here!

Here is a sample group, the girls unning to slacks, dark manes of hair, acquered finger nails, cigarets; the oys bareheaded, often in informal ndershirts, swaggering a bit. Helen, ernice, Babe, Pal, Frances, Shangai, Dot, Budd, Stella, Esther, Punky, ob, Bud, Al, Tony, Sally—this is "the ang."

They pair off and wander about olding hands or with arms around ach other. Spooning is open and nashamed. Invisible curtains are pread at will.

Here is a girl with a face that sugests the blood of the orient, dark, anguorous, dancing a waltz in the noonlight, as responsive as a violin o the touch of her partner and the lit of the music. A cheap dress, a it of costume jewelry, yet more eauty and grace here than is often ound in an expensive night club.

Melting Pot of Races.

Foreign languages are heard here. egroes, Chinese, Jews, Poles, Lithunians; a melting pot of races simers here, the unity of the holiday ood overcoming their diversity.

After the restaurants, the beer ounters, the hot dogs, and the sideows, the wanderer on the pier these ays may enter the world of art for 0 cents admission.

Here in an exposition hall a block ong are hung hundreds of paintings y Chicago artists.

They may gaze on the misty heights f Mount Rainier or at the nude figre of a woman standing on a rock y the surf of some alien sea. Magic asements here for all.

G. O. P. Backs Superhighway Program

AGREE TO PUSH CHICAGO SAFETY BILLS IN HOUSE

Downstaters Indorse $60,000,000 Plan.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 25.—[Special.]—State leaders of the Republican party, in week-end conferences, have approved Chicago's superhighway legislation. They have agreed that a defeat of the life saving bills in the house of representatives, where the Republicans have a majority, would raise a charge of obstructionism against the party in the 1940 campaigns.

This decision is expected to ease the course of the safety measures during the final week of legislative session, which begins tomorrow night. Democrats initiated the bills and passed them in the senate on June 6. Republican downstaters last week sidetracked the bills to a house subcommittee.

This detour, in view of sine die adjournment next Friday, jeopardized but did not preclude enactment. The committee, it was decided, will meet again to report on the bills, or there will be a move to recall the measures to the floor of the house.

Approved by Downstaters.

Downstate as well as Cook county civic leaders have indorsed superhighway construction such as contemplated in the enabling legislation. The interest of northern Illinois is obvious, according to proponents.

At no cost to any one outside of Cook county, the surrounding territory would enjoy safer and more rapid motor transportation into Chicago. At the same time, this surrounding territory would become more accessible from Chicago—an important factor in realty values.

It is agreed that the bills should be amended so Chicago and Cook county each would be authorized to issue $30,000,000 in notes to be retired with their respective revenues from the gasoline excise. The expenditures for superhighways would be supervised by the Illinois highway department. No state funds would be involved in the legislation, however, after the proposed amendments.

Motor Club Wins Backers.

The Chicago Motor club, in a series of meetings in northern Illinois during the last two or three years, found support for Chicago superhighways in twelve senatorial districts outside Cook county.

On the construction program awaiting enactment of the enabling legislation are two projects of particular interest to these northern Illinois counties. One would be an elevated highway abutting the Chicago and North Western railroad embankment and connecting with Skokie road and the fan of highways that radiate from the northwestern corner of Chicago. The other would be an extension northward of the outer drive.

Representing the 8th district in the house are Thomas A. Bolger [D.], Nick Keller [R.], and Harold D. Kelsey [R.]. They will receive a letter from the Chicago Motor club tomorrow containing the following list of their neighbors who took part in a

Five Virginians Tar Royal Fete Gossip Writer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warrenton, Va., June 25.—[Special.]—Comment in a Washington newspaper's gossip column about a gentleman farmer who was not invited to the recent garden party for the king and queen of Great Britain although his wife was, brought a coat of tar and feathers early today to the writer, Igor Cassini. He conducts a column on social affairs.

Tonight Sheriff W. S. Wolfe of Fauquier county is looking for five young men, members of prominent Virginia and Maryland families, on warrants charging felonious assault. Conviction would carry prison terms of from one to ten years. Names of three of the men sought are on the warrants; the other two are listed as John Doe and Richard Doe.

Cassini swore to the warrants after telling Commonwealth Attorney Clarence W. Carter that he was lured from a country club dance, beaten, choked, stripped of his clothing, and covered with tar and feathers.

Son of Russian Countess.

Cassini is a son of Countess Marguerite Cassini and a grandson of the late Count Arthur Cassini, who was the Russian ambassador to the United States during the McKinley administration. Cassini is 22 years old.

According to Cassini, he was dancing about 1 a. m. with Jane Calvert, 17, at the Fauquier Country club after attending a fashionable pony show. He said the club doorman told him a motorist had struck his car and suggested he investigate.

Cassini said he went to his car and was hailed by five men, three of whom he said were Ian Montgomery, 38, his brother, Colin, 28, and Alexander Calvert, 21, a brother of his dancing partner. Cassini said he did not recognize the other two. Cassini said when he approached the group he was seized, beaten, and forced into a car. Then he was choked until unconscious, he said.

Dragged from Car and Stripped.

When he recovered consciousness, Cassini said, the car was about ten miles from the country club in a lonely part of the country which is the home of one of Virginia's best known and most fashionable hunts. When the car was stopped Cassini said his assailants dragged him out, ripped off his clothes, and beat him. Then, Cassini told Prosecutor Carter, Ian Montgomery drew a razor from his pocket and threatened to mutilate him.

"Why are you doing this to me?" Cassini asked. "I never have done anything to harm you."

"You know what you did," Ian Montgomery replied, according to Cassini. "You wrote last week that my father was humiliated by not getting an invitation to Lady Lindsay's garden party for the king and queen."

Resents Writing About Sister.

"And you wrote that my sister, Virginia, was engaged to John Payton before it was announced," Calvert shouted, according to Cassini.

Then, he says, Colin Montgomery and Calvert took cans of tar from the automobile and poured it over him from chin to feet.

Cassini walked two miles to a farm near Auburn. The farmer wrapped him in a blanket and brought him to Warrenton to the home of Maj. Austin McDonnell, his week-end host. Maj. McDonnell took him to a hospital where physicians worked for three hours to remove the tar and feathers and treat his bruises.

GETS SUCH A KICK OUT OF FAIR GADGETS HE STAYS 5 DAYS—IN JAIL

New York, June 25.—(AP)—Melvin M. Desser, 27 years old, of Baltimore, Md., came up for the New York world's fair today and visited the RCA exhibit where he got a kick out of pushing buttons.

On the way out of the building, he pushed another gadget. Three fire engines responded.

"It's all a mistake; I thought it was part of the exhibit," Desser told Magistrate Anthony P. Saverese.

The court fined him $50 or five days in jail on a false alarm charge. Desser chose the jail term.

Germany Ends Easy Life for Society Wives

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 25.—A Nazi plan for the conscription of women of means and leisure to do compulsory service as workers in factories, including ammunition plants, is being tried out in Celle and Hanover.

The plan is meeting with considerable resistance. In the initial week the women showed what the Nazis consider a remarkable lack of talent for the compulsory jobs meted out to them.

In Celle and Hanover several groups of socially prominent women of all ages—even in their fifties—were ordered to report for work for a maximum of six weeks in ammunition plants and similar organizations of national importance.

Measure Raises a Storm.

In Celle, the conscription measure raised a tremendous storm. It is one of those prosperous small towns with a big garrison, a huge air field and an important high court where wives of functionaries and army officers abound and all are aware of their social importance.

The women who were drafted to work in a nearby munitions factory were ordered to muster in at 5 a. m.

Some succeeded in getting their husbands to intervene in their behalf. Only women who had small children were excused. The women were told their protests were useless "unless they wanted to create the impression they were not ardent Nazis." They went to work.

Get 18 Cents an Hour.

They were paid 18 cents an hour and the customary taxes and insurance dues were deducted from their pay envelopes. Forewomen found the new employes lacked aptitude for their work. For the sake of efficiency the factory owners asked the Nazis to alter the plan—to use the compulsory labor of the women only in case of direct emergency.

The elder girls of the Nazi association of German girls were drafted in the place of some of the elderly women. Now Adolf Hitler's labor experts are considering what jobs they could entrust to the women of leisure to "make proper use of their unused strength."

Huge Shortage, Governor Says; President Out

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baton Rouge, La., June 25.—[Special.]—Gov. Richard W. Leche late tonight postponed his resignation and announced evidence of a financial scandal had been revealed at Louisiana State university that may reach into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Dr. James Monroe Smith, president of the university, resigned this afternoon, the governor said. The state police were ordered to search for Dr. Smith to have him available for a special grand jury. He had disappeared, the governor said. Near midnight state police searched a train at Addis, across the Mississippi river, a junction point, but did not find Dr. Smith.

The university is one of the instruments in the expenditure of WPA funds in Louisiana.

Affidavits Mention Governor.

The revelation of irregularities at the university rides hard on the heels of the general affidavit signed by six citizens which Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] presented to a senate committee a few days ago charging corruption and graft in the operation of WPA labor and materials in Louisiana. Gov. Leche was mentioned in the general affidavit put in the record by Senator Nye. A few hours later Gov. Leche announced he would resign, giving illness from arthritis as the reason.

Tonight's sensation was the greatest in Louisiana since the killing of Huey P. Long in September, 1935. It came on the eve of the day when Leche was to retire and Earl Long, brother of the late "Kingfish," was to have been sworn in as his successor. Earl Long now is lieutenant governor.

Leche Calls in Reporters.

After 9 o'clock tonight newspaper men were summoned to the executive mansion. Camera men, from newspapers and news reels had been taking shots of Leche as retiring governor and Long as incoming governor. At 10:30 the governor handed out a statement. He said his resignation had been postponed indefinitly until the question of the misuse of university funds has been settled. The mansion was ringed by thirty state police and a detective required every one there to explain his business.

The reporters were taken into a room of the mansion, the doors were locked, and use of the telephone restricted, while in another wing state officials met. In the conference were the governor, Attorney General David M. Ellison, Public Funds Supervisor Frank S. Shattuck, C. E. Frampton, state publicity director; Gen. Louis F. Guerre, superintendent of the state police; Judge James D. Womack of the District court of East Baton Rouge parish, and Associate Justice John B. Fournet of the Louisiana Supreme court.

Tells of Improvements.

In a recent speech at New Orleans President Smith in commenting on the building program at Louisiana State university said that in nine years $13,500,000 had been spent on construction projects. Of this he declared $1,800,000 was WPA funds and $800,000 PWA money. Some 30 buildings have gone up in that period.

In his statement Gov. Leche said that on June 13 Attorney General Ellison announced he was conducting a thorough investigation into certain serious matters.

"Today," said the governor's statement, "he has presented me with evidence which I believe reveals even more serious irregularities than was at first imagined. For some time

STEPS OUT OF 'BERTH' AND FINDS SELF BROKE 90 MILES FROM HOME

Frankfort, Ky., June 25.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rasmussen of Newport drove friends here last night from their home.

Preparing to return the ninety miles, Mrs. Rasmussen got behind the steering wheel and Rasmussen got in the "turtleback" of their coupe. He stepped out for a moment without attracting his wife's attention, and she drove away.

Coatless and without money, Rasmussen went to the state highway patrol headquarters and told his story. Officers called Newport police. The latter notified Mrs. Rasmussen.

At 5 a. m. Mrs. Rasmussen returned here for her husband. She said she hadn't missed him until she reached home.

JAP GUARDS IN TIENTSIN STRIP BRITISH COUPLE

New Indignities Stir Foreign Colony.

BULLETIN.

HONGKONG, June 26 (Monday). — (AP) — British naval officers disclosed today that barbed wire barricades had been placed by Japanese soldiers around British wharves at Swatow, South China port occupied last week by the Japanese.

TIENTSIN, June 25.—(AP)—An official announcement that a British subject and his wife were undressed and searched before being allowed to cross the Japanese barrier shocked the British community tonight as the British and French concessions ended the twelfth day under blockade.

Maj. G. A. Herbert, British consul, who protested last week against other incidents in which British men were stripped and searched, announced the woman was permitted to retain only one garment—a girdle—while subjected to an examination by a Chinese policewoman in full view of a Japanese sentry.

Returning After Work.

The two involved were Mr. and Mrs. D. Finlay, who are employed in the International Country club in Japanese controled territory. Maj. Herbert said the incident took place late Saturday.

In giving details of the Finlay incident Maj. Herbert said the couple were returning to the British concession after work and Finlay reported they stood in line for an hour while other foreigners and Chinese passed into the zone.

Then they were taken into one of the searching huts which Japanese patrols have established at all barrier entrances, where Finlay reported he was divested of all clothing and examined closely while his wife was forced to watch.

Sentry Refuses to Leave.

Mrs. Finlay then was placed in charge of a Chinese policewoman and taken into an inner room where, he reported, she was forced to undergo a similar examination "within full view of a watching Japanese sentry."

She said she requested the sentry to leave the room, "whereupon he momentarily turned his back, but soon resumed a steady scrutiny of the examination."

Mrs. Finlay said she was divested of her coat, dress, petticoat, and underclothing, being permitted only to retain a girdle.

When the examination was finished, she said, she was allowed to dress and emerged to find her husband, garbed only in an undershirt, shoved into the street.

She said Japanese sentries flung his clothing after him and he dressed in full view of a crowd of spectators. The couple then was permitted to enter the concession.

American Seaman Detained.

Other developments included:

1. American Consul General John K. Caldwell announced he had lodged representations with the Japanese, charging them with mistreatment of Robert S. Casey, an American seaman from Seattle, Wash., in detaining him four days. The incident was regarded closed when Japanese consular officials expressed their regret.

2. Japanese Consul General Shigenori Tashiro sent a strongly worded protest to British Consul General E. G. Jamieson, charging the British military with interfering with and attacking a Chinese constable on Japanese occupied territory. The incident, precipitated when a British soldier allegedly assaulted a Chinese shopkeeper, took place late Saturday.

3. Japanese tightened their blockade by allowing only one Chinese to enter the British and French concessions each half hour and declared martial law near the railway station, beyond the international bridge, sweeping back a crowd of Chinese waiting to enter the French zone.

Milk Supplies Cut Off.

4. G. A. Smith, a British exporter, was released after being held for eight days by the Japanese on charges of manhandling a Chinese policeman outside the British concession.

5. Supplies of fresh milk to both concessions were cut off and British official circles alleged the Japanese had threatened Chinese outside the barricaded zones with imprisonment or death if they were caught supplying the British with fresh foodstuffs.

In the incident which resulted in Tashiro's protest, Japanese charged a British soldier assaulted a Chinese shopkeeper in Japanese occupied territory and that British concession police beat off Japanese sponsored Chinese police when they tried to arrest the Tommy. No shots were fired, but some of the participants received minor injuries.

Japanese reported that Casey, the American sailor, was detained because he failed to produce a seaman's certificate. Casey was understood to have returned to his ship, the Michigan, which was lying off Tangku with a cargo of American flour to be transferred by barge to Tientsin. The barge service, however, has encountered difficulty through Japanese interference with craft on the Hai river.

With the ending of the second Sunday under blockade, residents of the concessions failed to see any prospect of immediate settlement of the British-Japanese dispute.

Three hundred White Russian volunteers held their weekly rally and parade and a political meeting of the anti-communist committee adjacent to the British concession in the afternoon, causing concession authorities to call out special patrols to prevent possible entry into their zone for a demonstration. Some of the Russians in the meeting were armed with rifles and machine guns.

Require Notice of Ships.

HONGKONG, June 25.—(AP)—Japanese naval authorities announced today that all vessels of third powers seeking to enter Swatow must give 24 hours' notice and that all such craft were subject to search.

The announcement said also that for the present only shipments of foodstuffs would be permitted in the South China city which was captured by the Japanese last Wednesday.

To the south Chinese were moving up reënforcements to meet a threatened southward extension of the Japanese control of Kwangtung province.

BRITAIN MAY RETALIATE

LONDON, June 25.—(AP)—Great Britain is planning to take retaliatory measures against Japan before the end of the week, informed quarters said today, unless the Japanese agree to negotiate the Tientsin dispute.

Faced by a growing demand for strong action, the cabinet was said to have decided to authorize such measures at its regular meeting Wednesday if the Japanese government continues silent on numerous British representations.

Tokio Refuses to Answer.

So far Tokio has refused to answer requests for a clear statement as to whether wide demands made by Japanese military authorities in North China were approved by the government or whether Japan would be willing to settle the Tientsin dispute on a local basis.

[Japanese began their blockade of the British and French concessions a week ago last Wednesday. The dispute originated when the British refused to hand over four Chinese the Japanese claimed were involved in the assassination of a Tientsin customs official. Increased demands on the British, including one that they halt aid to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of China, were made by the Japanese military.]

Britain Getting Impatient.

It was said in official circles that Britain already had shown extreme patience and could not ignore humiliating treatment of British subjects much longer.

There still was no official intimation as to what form the projected reprisals might take, but it was known the cabinet had been studying the possibility of economic measures, such as an embargo on Japanese goods.

Another suggestion was the staging of a naval demonstration designed to impress the Japanese military commanders in China.

ARMY WILL SEEK 112,500 RECRUITS NEXT 12 MONTHS

Washington, D. C., June 25.—(AP)—The war department is setting up more than 400 recruiting stations for the most intensive drive for men in the army's peacetime history.

To provide for the vast arms expansion congress has voted and for normal replacements, 112,500 men must be signed up in the twelve months starting Saturday.

Eighteen recruiting stations on wheels, officials said today, will supplement 289 officers scattered over all states and more than 100 active army posts where applications will be received.

Most of the recruits will be assigned to the air corps, to be trebled in strength in the next two years and officials stressed the hope of enlisting men with at least a high school education or a journeyman's rating in a mechanical trade.

Other requirements are unchanged. A recruit must be unmarried, in top physical condition, and from 18 to 35 in age. He must sign up for three years.

RUSSIA REVEALS HEAVY LOSSES IN JAP-MONGOL WAR

Gives Details of Fights Raging for 6 Weeks.

MOSCOW, June 25.—(AP)—Artillery warfare, with tanks and airplanes also participating, has been raging for six weeks between Manchukuan-Japanese troops and Mongols on the frontier of Outer Mongolia, the Moscow radio told the Russian public tonight.

The announcement was the first specific news that soviet citizens have been given of the fighting along the border which Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov on May 31 proclaimed would be defended by the soviet "with the same determination as our own."

The communique, describing a long series of battles beginning May 11 and continuing up to Saturday, said a total of eighty-two planes had been shot down—fifty-nine Japanese and the rest soviet-Monogolian. Tass, official soviet news agency, said twenty-five Japanese planes were shot down in yesterday's battle and that two Russian craft were lost.

Put Troops on Border.

Soviet-Mongolian troops were described as being concentrated on the border southeast of Lake Bor, ready for large scale action.

In a surprise attack May 11, the communique said, Mongol outposts were driven back over the Khalkha Gol river, but succeeded in hurling back the foe and in "dispersing" a later attack by large reënforcements of Japanese troops using planes, tanks, armored cars, and artillery.

[Japanese dispatches have told of intermittent fighting along Manchukuo's western border since May 7, each dispatch emphasizing heavy Mongol-soviet losses of planes and men, and minimizing Japanese-Manchukuan casualties. These dispatches said sixty-two soviet planes had been brought down since Thursday.]

Sees Tie with China Pact.

Foreign observers saw significance in the fact that the government lifted the curtain to reveal the fighting within twenty-four hours after the soviet press published the conclusion of a trade agreement between the U. S. S. R. and China.

The Kremlin plainly wanted the people to know that the soviet is helping China and also is fulfilling its obligations under the Outer Mongolian mutual assistance pact of 1936.

[Outer Mongolia has been practically independent of China since establishment of the Chinese Republic in 1912 when Russia recognized Mongolian independence.]

ARMY DISCLOSES ARMOR PIERCING ANTI-TANK GUN

Washington, D. C., June 25.—(AP)—The army disclosed today development of a new anti-tank gun firing a projectile which will penetrate one and one-half inch armor plate a half mile away.

Word of the new gun followed by a day announcement of another powerful artillery piece, a field gun firing a 100 pound shell fifteen miles.

The anti-tank gun, of 37 millimeter caliber, was described by Lieut. Col. G. M. Barnes, ordnance engineer. It weighs 900 pounds, he said, and can be moved readily in maneuvers and battle.

Many of the guns already are being manufactured. Funds for them were included in the administration's $552,000,000 arms expansion program.

BULGARIA URGED TO TIE UP WITH HITLER AND DUCE

Nazi Chief Fixes Plan for Balkan Bloc.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, June 25.—(AP)—Increasing pressure for Bulgaria's open adherence to the Rome-Berlin axis was seen by diplomats today in conversations between Bulgarian leaders and Dr. Hans Frank, Nazi minister without portfolio.

Dr. Frank was reported to have sketched a plan for a Bulgarian-Hungarian-Jugo-Slav bloc under patronage of Germany and Italy.

Such a bloc would be expected to offset Turkey, Rumania, and Greece, who are friends of Britain and France in the Balkans.

Axis Backs Fight for Land.

It was said that Bulgaria's demands for return of war-lost territories from Rumania and Greece would be supported actively by the Rome-Berlin axis in return for her allegiance pledge.

On the other hand, it was reported Hungary would be backed in her desire to get Transylvania back from Rumania while Jugo-Slavia would be promised the Greek port of Saloniki, long coveted by Jugo-Slavs.

The Bulgarian press gave prominent display to Dr. Frank's appeal to Bulgaria to join with Germany in fighting the world war treaties.

Refers to Territorial Hopes.

Obviously referring to Bulgaria's hopes of retrieving territory by a peaceful agreement, he declared "10,000 rifles are more valuable than 10,000,000 words."

Dr. Frank's talks with government leaders here were backed by powerful commercial arguments. During the first few months of this year Germany took 75 per cent of Bulgaria's exports and supplied 65 per cent of her imports.

What answer, if any, the government has given Germany remains to be seen.

Increasing interest of the anti-communist pact members in Bulgaria was shown by the announcement that Japan would transfer her Balkan legation here from Athens.

FRENCH LEADERS CALL AMERICA PEACE FRONT KEY

Bonnet and Two Others Make Appeals.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 25.—Three prominent figures in French public life addressed urgent appeals to America today to step up into the front line of a "peace coalition." The speakers included Georges Bonnet, foreign minister.

Bonnet's bid for American aid was made at Arcachon, in southwest France, where he spoke at a regional meeting of the Radical Socialist party which controls the government. It was backed up in other speeches by Marx Dormoy, former minister of interior and one of the bigwigs of the Socialist party, and by Leon Jouhaux, head of the general federation of labor.

"Should America decide today to declare that it would be on the side of the peace coalition in event of German aggression in Europe, peace would not be troubled," Bonnet declared.

Soviet Pact Unmentioned.

The foreign minister refrained from throwing any light on the baffling stalemate of the Anglo-Russian negotiations for a mutual assistance pact.

Addressing a Socialist group at Dijon, Dormoy said all the old world's problems could be solved at the conference table provided "Stalin was sitting opposite Hitler and Mr. Roosevelt opposite Mussolini."

The contribution of Jouhaux to the hands across the sea campaign was in a similar vein.

Apart from their particular interest to Americans, these three appeals are storm signals which indicate that French observers again see big black clouds gathering on the European horizon. It is significant that they were made on the same day that leading Nazi spokesmen launched challenges to the western powers, similar to those uttered prior to and during the Czecho-Slovak crisis.

Recalls Roosevelt Message.

It was recalled tonight that Bonnet made a similar plea last September. President Roosevelt's famous peace message to Adolf Hitler was regarded here as prompted in part by Bonnet.

French political observers have been closely following the progress of the struggle between Mr. Roosevelt and the nationalists in congress over the neutrality law. They hope that the President will soon be in a position to intervene even more energetically in the old world should a new opportunity arise—this time preferably before Hitler plays his hand.

Informed observers think Hitler will move in August, at the latest. By that time Germany will have 1,400,000 troops under arms, according to estimates of French correspondents in Berlin.

BRITAIN NO MATCH FOR NAZI MIGHT, GOEBBELS CRIES

ESSEN, Germany, June 25.—(AP)—Great Britain "cannot compete with our might," Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels said today in quick answer to Prime Minister Chamberlain's appraisal of growing British strength.

Speaking at the closing session of Nazi Party day, Goebbels took issue with the British leader's statement yesterday in Cardiff, Wales; reiterated demands for the return of colonies which he said were stolen from Germany, and enunciated a policy of "He who does not gamble cannot win."

[Chamberlain boasted of British military might at Cardiff.]

"We wish statesmen would understand our policies," the propaganda minister said. "England stands as an idiot. They [the British] cannot compete with our might.

"We have nothing to fear from outside enemies—especially our friend on the other side of the channel. 'Capitulation' is not a part of our vocabulary."

DEAL EXPECTED ON MEXICAN OIL WITHIN 6 WEEKS

Would Restore Foreign Control for 25 Years.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, June 25.—A settlement of the oil controversy between the Mexican government and foreign companies will be reached within six weeks, informed sources here told THE TRIBUNE today.

On March 18, 1938, the government expropriated foreign owned oil properties which the companies estimated were worth $400,000,000. Since that time representatives of the companies—chiefly American and British—have been negotiating to obtain compensation or the return of their properties.

Meanwhile the properties have been operated by the government and the unions have been agitating for transfer of full control to the workers as in the case of the National Railways of Mexico.

Close to Final Terms.

A source close to President Lazaro Cardenas revealed details of the advanced stage of the negotiations for a settlement. Donald R. Richberg, American attorney, has been the chief negotiator for seventeen British and American oil companies.

Under the terms of the expected settlement, THE TRIBUNE's informant said, management of the properties would be restored to the companies for 25 years, after which the properties would revert to Mexico. The companies would be supervised by a board of directors including two representatives of each company and two from the government. Any labor trouble would be the responsibility of the government.

THE TRIBUNE's informant asserted that under Richberg's proposal, the companies would advance 25,000,000 pesos [about $5,000,000] to the Mexican treasury, and pay a royalty of 12 cents per barrel for all oil produced, plus 22 per cent of the net proceeds from all oil sold outside Mexico and 28 per cent of the net from all sold inside. The $5,000,000 advance would be repaid from royalties.

Treasury Needs Money.

The depleted state of the Mexican treasury is one circumstance which tends to support the belief that a settlement is near. Secretary of Treasury Eduardo Suarez is urging President Cardenas to accept the proposal. Ramon Beteta, sub-secretary for foreign relations, however, is holding out for 50-50 representation of the government on the board of directors and in the management.

THE TRIBUNE's informant asserted that Beteta was sent to Washington, D. C., to assist the negotiations because Cardenas had lost confidence in the efforts of Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexico's ambassador.

Linked to Silver Sales.

It is also reported that President Roosevelt made a mild threat to Mexico that if there was no oil settlement, there would be no further purchases of Mexican silver—a source of income that is vital to the Mexican treasury.

Meanwhile the oil workers' secret convention here is preparing new demands upon the government. The delegates are discussing such subjects as organization of the industry, labor administration, reduction of hours and the payment by the government of about 126,000,000 pesos [about $25,000,000] to the oil workers.

The workers declare the government, as the present operator of the oil industry, owes the money to the 17,000 workers under the labor law's wage and benefit guarantees and has not observed the law. The workers also demand improved sanitary conditions in the oil fields and urge the construction of houses and rest centers.

Want Experienced Bosses.

The struggle between politicians and the workers is being aired in the convention. The workers want administrative control of the industry and want to put experienced oil men in the places of the politicians who now hold the top jobs. Some of the present executives have no oil experience at all.

Organization of the industry would entail the elimination of about 75 per cent of the filling stations throughout the country. That would result in a large number of workers losing their jobs, or in the immediate shortening of hours.

WALLACE SEEKS MILK RULE OVER CHICAGO TODAY

Rebuffed Twice; Third Hearing to Open.

After two failures to establish federal regulation of milk production and handling in the Chicago market, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace will inaugurate a third attempt today.

Public hearings to consider a marketing agreement and an orderly program for milk will begin at the Hotel Stevens under the direction of a marketing expert of the Agricultural Adjustment administration. Producers, handlers, and consumers will be asked to give sworn testimony.

The hearing was requested by the Pure Milk association and the Chicago Milk Producers Council, Inc., which is said to represent about 90 per cent of the milk industry in this area. Records of the sessions will go to the secretary, who will then decide whether he should issue a new marketing order. Such an order will be made known to producers and their approval or disapproval determined by a referendum vote before it is put into effect.

First Plan Tried in 1933.

A federal milk license program was put into effect in Chicago on Aug. 1, 1933, and was terminated Jan. 1, 1934. A second license was made effective Feb. 5, 1934, and was terminated March 2, 1935, at the request of the producer representatives. No federal milk program has existed in the Chicago market since March 2, 1935.

The previous efforts at control were accompanied by fluctuations in the retail price, dissatisfaction amounting to riots, threats, and strikes by independent farmers and dealers; suits, injunctions, drastic efforts at enforcement, examination of dairymen's books, and investigations by the Federal Trade commission and the department of justice.

Two New Factors Enter Case.

This era was culminated by two important factors which also enter into the present situation. These are the decision of the United States Supreme court declaring constitutional the agricultural marketing agreement act of 1937, under which the milk programs in Chicago and in other cities now are projected, and the indictment in federal court in Chicago of sixty-three individuals and thirty-four corporations engaged in the milk business.

The list of those named in indictments under the Sherman anti-trust act, which carry possible criminal penalties of a year in prison and a fine of $1,000 in each instance, includes the Pure Milk association. Officials of the association deny there is any connection between the indictment and their request for new intervention by Secretary Wallace in the milk business in Chicago. It has been pointed out many times, however, that the regulation which would be imposed under a new federal order would amount to about the same thing as the monopoly charges made in the indictments.

Prosecution Going Forward.

The big milk case is going ahead, apparently, despite the action of the indicted producers' coöperative. About the time of the failure of the second effort at Chicago control the Federal Trade commission was asked by Secretary Wallace to investigate conditions here. The commission reported in 1937, making a strong recommendation for producer coöperatives and at the same time declaring that the large distributing companies had made secret rebates and special discounts to certain customers, such as chain stores. They recommended interstate milk shed agreements, with the federal government acting in an advisory capacity.

The federal department of justice got busy about the same time and, after a year long quiz of all the elements of milk production and distribution, took its case to the grand jury. The purpose of the investigation, it was stated, was to determine the cause of the wide differential between farm and retail prices, a difference of around 8 cents a quart.

The case is pending before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, who has demurrers to the indictment under advisement. Other legal steps will be taken before the case goes to trial in the fall.

Producers Seek 4 Cents a Quart.

According to the Pure Milk association, farmers are getting less than 3 cents a quart for their milk in this area. The association contends they should get 4 cents.

The basis for the hearing will be a program drafted by the Pure Milk association. This does not establish prices consumers are to pay for milk. A minimum price of $1.80 a hundred pounds for class 1 milk, and a maximum of $2.20 would be set by an administrator. The main provisions of the agreement are as follows:

Classification of milk according to use into three divisions and the setting of minimum prices charged to handlers for milk in each class.

Uniform prices to be paid producers, based on total utilization of milk in the market.

Administration by a market administrator, who would verify monthly reports by milk handlers.

Administration expenses, up to 2 cents a 100 pounds of milk, to be borne by handlers; and a checkoff charge of 3 cents a 100 pounds for marketing services to producers who are not members of a coöperative.

History of the First Code.

Under the first control plan tried in Chicago in 1933 a code was set up giving the government authority to fix prices for farmers and consumers. It had not been in effect long before the farmers, who were getting $1.75 a hundred pounds under the code, demanded $2.20. Milk depots cut the rates to consumers and sought an injunction against government interference. There were widespread violations of the code order by independents. Price boosts to consumers were threatened, and Secretary Wallace threatened drastic action.

There was a struggle to get Pure Milk association policies enforced by the federal government. Three hundred farmers at Woodstock protested against the agreement. Cook county roadside stands took up the fight against the right of the government to compel cash customers to pay as much as doorstep delivery customers.

There was a hearing to boost the retail price and a strike in McHenry and Kane counties. Milk stand owners charged the "milk trust" with conspiring with the AAA. Fifty dairies were cited as code breakers, and auditors were sent to inspect their books. In 1934 there was another strike and milk trucks were dumped. The Chicago Milk Dealers' association cut the retail price 1 cent.

Abandoned as Unenforceable.

The old agreement was abandoned as unenforceable, and a new one was negotiated. This was a modified plan under which the farm price only was fixed by the government. A new price schedule was made, and a new licensing order. Strict federal enforcement was promised. The retail price went down a cent. Two independent cut rate companies sued fifty defendants as a milk trust and reduced the price another cent. Cut rate milk stores were smashed. Four federal administrators were assigned to the district and quotas fixed for farmers, with penalties for violation of the license fixed at revocation and a fine of $1,000 a day.

This second plan began to break down early in 1935. The collapse was shown first in individual contracts between producers and dealers. Federal supervision was found unnecessary. On March 2, 1935, the Pure Milk association asked the AAA to suspend the milk license. Don Geyer, then manager of the association, said the plan adopted to increase the prices paid to farmers actually had tended to lower them. Individual contracts instead of federal contracts saved $10,000 a month in administrative expenses, it was pointed out.

A study of the milk situation showed consumption of milk had decreased with increases in prices.

In New York joint federal-state control went into effect in 1938. In February of this year Federal Judge Frank Cooper held the federal law discriminatory. The New York state law also was held unconstitutional. Secretary Wallace suspended the federal marketing order in March, when the price of grade A milk was 16¾ cents a quart. A milk price war began. Chaotic conditions reigned until the Supreme court decision put the marketing order back into effect.

In Boston there was trouble over prices and over a pool of funds for equalizing producer prices.

REVEALS DEADLY T. B. GERM STOPS FATAL BLEEDING

Boston, Mass., June 25.—(AP)—The germ of tuberculosis was described today as the "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" of the medical world—a killer in one rôle, a life-saver in another.

Dr. William Charles White, chairman of the medical research committee of the National Tuberculosis association, told scientists convening for a four-day convention that from the germ science has obtained a form of vitamin K, the anti-hermorrhagic vitamin which prevents or checks fatal bleeding in obstructive jaundice.

The tiny lethal bacilli, he said, are the source of a substance known as phthiocol, already used effectively to give jaundice sufferers the necessary blood-clotting they need. He added:

"There is a possibility that it also may be used to prevent bleeding in surgery."

11 ARE INJURED AS STREET CAR JUMPS THE RAILS

Eleven passengers were injured, one seriously last night, when a westbound 95th street surface lines car jumped the rails at Baltimore avenue and ran upon the curb.

They were taken to the South Chicago hospital for first aid. Mrs. Mildred Mladar, 29 years old, 332 West 58th street, may have suffered a neck fracture, doctors said.

The others hurt were Mrs. Katherine Kuych, 9610 Escanaba avenue; Joseph Bechich, his wife, Agnes, and their daughter, Antoinette, 339 West 30th place; Mrs. Helen Hecinovich, 9139 Buffalo avenue; Mike Virgrovich, 9003 Burley avenue; Sarah Vladovich, 6473 Marshfield avenue; Mary Botica, 3802 West 57th place, and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Milicevich, 1625 West 83d street.

The car was crowded with picnickers from a Croatian outing in Eggers grove, Hegewisch. The motorman was C. A. Duffy, 656 East 52d place.

FARMER DEFIES PRICE FIXERS IN SELLING 5c MILK

If Convicted He Will Carry Fight to Highest Court.

Manitowoc, Wis., June 25.—[Special.]—When Joseph Lemberger, a Mishicot farmer, goes on trial in Two Rivers municipal court next month for selling milk at five cents a quart in defiance of the state price fixing law, he hopes to be acquitted. If he is found guilty he says he is going to fight the law with the backing of his fellow farmers.

Supporting Lemberger in his fight against the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets will be 362 members of the Progressive Dairy Farmers' association of Manitowoc county.

Lemberger is being prosecuted by Ralph E. Ammon, director of the state department, because he has been selling from 800 to 1,000 quarts of milk a day just outside the corporate limits of Two Rivers and charging only five cents, while 10 cents a quart is the price of milk in Manitowoc county as fixed by law.

Hope to Pay Off Mortgage.

Lemberger explained today that he and his wife are trying to save their 104 acre farm from mortgage foreclosure.

Under the price fixing law, Lemberger said, he received so little for the surplus milk he was forced to sell to cheese factories and condensories—because high prices reduced the demand for fluid milk—that he was in danger of losing his farm and herd.

Now, he said, if let alone by the state, he has a chance to save his property and still have something left. And despite the prosecution, Lemberger said he is going to continue selling milk outside Two Rivers until driven away with a gun.

The state's complaint against Lemberger charges that his dairy does not meet state sanitation requirements and that if allowed to continue selling milk for 5 cents a quart he will demoralize the market for milk at the fixed price.

Seek High Court Ruling.

In backing Lemberger in his fight against the state, the dairy association is eager for the case to be carried to the highest courts, believing that the price fixing law will be declared invalid.

The association also charges that the price fixing law works for the benefit of cheese factories because farmers have no place else to sell their milk when the fluid milk demand is low, and that the cheese factories are reaping profits on cheap cheese which rightfully should go to the farmers.

William Rohan of Kaukana, a former Democratic member of the legislature, also is defying the state price fixing law by selling milk on his farm for 5 cents a quart. He has not been bothered by Ammon's department.

A bill to extend milk price fixing for a year from Dec. 31, 1939, when the present law expires, is at passage stage in the Wisconsin house. The bill would exempt farmers who sell milk on their own property.

G. O. P. Leader Demands 10% Slash in Federal Expenses

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 25.—[Special.]—Asserting that appropriations by this session of congress will reach the record breaking total of 13 billion dollars, Representative Joseph W. Martin [R., Mass.], Republican leader of the house, announced today that he will introduce a resolution tomorrow for a 10 per cent reduction in all allotments for 1940 except social security and relief. He calculates that the saving would aggregate half a billion dollars.

"The country," said Martin, "is shocked by the record of appropriations at this session of congress. Despite much talk about economy, there has been no action to that end because the administration and its spokesmen in congress have refused to coöperate with the earnest efforts of Republicans and a small group of patriotic Democrats, in the house, to curb unnecessary spending.

Fifth of Nation's Income.

"This session of congress, it now appears, will appropriate approximately $13,000,000,000, including permanent appropriations and trust funds. This sum is almost 20 per cent of the income of all the American people estimated for this year. On top of that, the President now urges legislation authorizing the issuance of treasury guaranteed bonds totaling another $3,860,000,000.

"Republicans in the house have insisted that a start should be made toward reducing our swollen budget so that eventually federal revenues and expenditures may be brought into balance.

"With that thought in mind, I propose to introduce in the house of representatives tomorrow a bill calling for a reduction of 10 per cent in all appropriations made by this session of congress that properly are susceptible of such a reduction.

"This bill contains flexible provisions in order to avoid undue hardships and specifically exempts from its provisions appropriations for relief, old age pensions, war veterans pensions and benefits, interest on the public debt and other fixed charges. But, even excluding such items, this bill, if adopted, would result in economies totaling at least $500,000,000."

Exceed This Year's Costs.

The congressman pointed out that the appropriations for the next fiscal year are larger than for the one now expiring, and asserted that they can be reduced 10 per cent without impairing any governmental activity.

"President Roosevelt himself, in July, 1937, instructed the heads of all executive departments and establishments to impound not less than 10 per cent of funds appropriated to them susceptible of such treatment," said Mr. Martin.

"Unfortunately this proposal proved to be only a gesture. Like so many proposals started with a fanfare of ballyhoo by the New Deal, it soon was forgotten.

"By writing a 10 per cent reduction into the law, we will be taking a major step toward economic recovery and reemployment in private industry at decent wages of our 11,000,000 unemployed men and women. Such an act as this represents a real, sound step in the direction of putting America back to work."

SEVEN JAILED IN MORALS RAID ON LOOP HOTEL

George Yost, 57 years old, a clerk; Sandy B. Kennedy, colored, a porter, and four women were arrested yesterday on morals charges in the Rancroft hotel, 89 West Randolph street. Detectives Harry Gleason and John Shine said they made appointments with the women through telephone calls to the hotel. The women gave their names as Mary Doherty, 26; Joan Murphy, 24; Helen Ward, 22, and Connie Wilson, 22, all waitresses. Miss Mary Nelson, 45, of 2919 North Clark street, who said she was a beauty operator, also was arrested in the hotel and held without charges. The others will appear today in the Women's court.

WOODLANDS RING AS THRONGS LIFT VOICES IN SONG

Chicago Is Encircled by Ring of Voices.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Thousands strong, the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker and their sons and daughters joined three organized choirs yesterday in encircling Chicago with music. The forest preserves were the settings for the songfests, the second series of summer concerts held under the joint sponsorship of the Cook county board of commissioners and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

At Whealan pool in the Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avenues, Father Joseph O'Donnell of St. Sebastian's Catholic church brought his vested choir of fifty boys and men, with an auxiliary contingent of ten girls, to sing a program that ranged from classic hymns of Palestrina, Brahms, and Handel to such hummable tunes as the "Londonderry Air" and "Kentucky Babe."

Picknickers Join in Song.

Swinging south and west to Thatcher woods, bordering River Forest, two score singers from the choir of the Austin Methodist church, with Frank Bennett directing and Mrs. Bennett at the piano, enticed hundreds of picnickers, cyclists, and hikers to the sunny circle east of the principal shelter with a potpourri of old fashioned hymns, folk songs, and opera selections.

Mrs. Grace Humphery and her Parker Women's chorus of thirty voices gave the third concert in Dan Ryan woods, 87th street and Western avenue.

Sound amplification, installed this year, has had a magic effect in establishing the popularity of the forest preserve concerts. Already at this early period of the second season the vesper hours in the woodlands give promise of becoming one of the music traditions of the locality.

A Spontaneous Answer.

The first song that drifted out in Thatcher woods yesterday was a signal spontaneously answered. Across the lawns waddled babies in sun suits, popsicles clutched in small, dirty fists. Boys from the playfield, bats, and tennis rackets under their arms, ambled over, their games forgotten. Up the winding paths strolled young men and women holding hands.

There came, too, dainty old ladies in laces with parasols for protection from the sun; white haired old men leaning on canes; mothers in house dresses and fathers in shirtsleeves and others in fine linen. They assembled casually and quietly, until the circle of benches and the flanking stretch of greensward looked like a rainbow whose colors had run together.

The Sunday forest preserve concerts will continue through July.

BODY RECOVERED FROM LAKE.

The body of a man wearing overalls and a black suit coat was recovered yesterday from the lake off 33d street. The man was about 65 years old and weighed 190 pounds.

Break Into Safe

Watchman D. Beck looking at safe broken open in jewelry store.

Expert yeggmen, working with saws and acetylene torches, broke into a large safe early yesterday in the Brandt jewelry store at 1223 East 63d street and stole jewelry valued at $9,000. The safe measures six feet by four feet. It gave the thieves a stout workout. However, they managed to burn a hole through the door, giving them access to an upper compartment. From this they took a quantity of rings, pins and watches. They did not touch the lower compartment, and thus missed about $20,000 in unset diamonds and some cash.

The theft was discovered by Irvine Spritz, 7020 Jeffery avenue, secretary of the company. The thieves entered the store by sawing window bars at the rear.

FREE CONCERTS IN GRANT PARK BEGIN SATURDAY

For the fifth consecutive year Chicago music lovers will have the opportunity of hearing great orchestras and great singers at free lake front concerts in Grant park.

James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, and a member of the park board, announced yesterday that the first of sixty-seven free concerts will be presented Saturday night in the bandshell opposite 11th street.

The concerts, sponsored by the park district, with the coöperation of the federation, will be given every evening through Labor day. There will be one exception, the night of Aug. 19, when the tenth Chicagoland Music Festival, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, will be presented in Soldiers' field.

This summer Chicago's free musical season will be greater than ever before. In addition to the lake front series, thirty-six free concerts will be given in Jackson, Lincoln, and Garfield parks. The first of these will be Friday in Garfield park. The next two will be Sunday, July 2, in Lincoln park and Jackson park.

A third series of free concerts, arranged under sponsorship of the city, is scheduled for Navy pier.

TINKHAM BLASTS NEUTRALITY BILL AS PLAN FOR WAR

Washington, D. C., June 25.—[Special.]—The house bill on neutrality in reality is a bill for war at the pleasure of President Roosevelt. This charge was made tonight by Representative George H. Tinkham [R., Mass.], a member of the house committee on foreign affairs, in a prepared statement.

The bill is scheduled to reach the floor of the house on Tuesday, and vigorous minority opposition is expected there. The bill threatens to extend this session of congress if passed by the house and sent to the senate, where the going will be even in the world at any time. It provides for personal government of the most dangerous character.

Tinkham said that one of the many objections to the bill is that it repeals the provision in the present neutrality act which prohibits the exportation of arms and ammunition to nations at war. As the British navy controls the sea, only Great Britain and her allies could come to the United States to obtain war supplies, he asserted.

WEEK OF CONFERENCES WITH G. O. P. LEADERS PLANNED BY BLACKETT

Hill Blackett, newly elected Republican national committeeman for Illinois, announced yesterday he will spend most of this week in a series of downstate conferences with county and district party leaders.

Blackett will go to Danville first, where he will meet with G. O. P. leaders tomorrow night. He will confer with leaders in the state legislature tomorrow at a luncheon in Springfield and will go to Jacksonville for an evening conference. Thursday evening he will be in Mount Vernon and Friday evening in Decatur. He will visit other downstaters later in July.

This noon Blackett will make his first public appearance since his election. He will speak at a luncheon of the 1940 club in the Hotel Sherman. He may tell of his visit last week to Washington, D. C., where he talked with National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton and other party leaders.

AMATEUR FLYERS SHOW METTLE BY THRILLING 40,000

Iowan Wins Tribune Cup at Big Air Show.

Forty thousand aviation enthusiasts visited Curtiss-Reynolds airport at Glenview yesterday to thrill to the second annual Amateur Air show More than a hundred planes owned by wealthy sportsmen pilots, struggling mechanics, and fluffy haired members of girls' flying clubs were stunted, raced, and put through flying demonstrations with the precision of professionals.

Reds and yellows predominated in the panoply of wings, blue-slacked girl pilots discussed the r.p.m.'s of motors, loud speakers blared continuously, and amateur parachute jumpers and bomb dropping contestants kept all eyes upward.

Formation Flying Perfect.

After a morning of elimination tests to reduce the number of afternoon entrants, Loyd Atkins started the show with a smoke writing act. Three planes, flown by Arthur La Pointe, David Bishop, and Don Braun, then went through echelon, attack, tandem, and Jacob's ladder formations with perfect precision.

The solo pilots' precision landing tournament was won by Carl Woods of East Moline, Ill. Herbert Huston of Madison, Wis., was second, and Oliver K. Tyler, third. Ellis E. Eno in an Aeronca Chief landed exactly in the circle to win the spot landing contest. Spug McNinch and Arthur Currey ranked second and third.

The women's closed course race of nine miles was the first competitive speed event of the afternoon. Opal Anderson, flying a 45 horse power plane, won when Helen Budwash in a 70 horse power plane was disqualified for cutting a turn while in the lead. She won a prize donated by the Walgreen company.

Ellis Wins Two Races.

The first men's race was restricted to 50 horse power planes and was won by Eno in his red Aeronca. Hamilton Maurer, flying a Taylor-Craft, was second, and Ray Niles of Omaha third.

Eno also won the men's open race. In this event he flew a brand new three place Stinson of 75 horse power which had performed some unusual acrobatics earlier in the afternoon. Arthur Currey was second and Larry Uhlich third.

Robert Friermuth won the bomb dropping contest. His flour sack bomb dropped from a height of 500 feet landed only six feet from a target resembling a house. Albert Giffey missed it by fifteen feet, and John Drexler by seventeen feet.

David Bishop, attired in tattered farm clothes, left no doubt that "Farmer Bishop is here"—as a sign on his plane proclaimed. He thrilled the crowd by stunting wildly a few feet from the ground.

Double 'Chute Leap Thrilling.

Probably the most thrilling stunt was the double parachute drop by two young men, each of whom had jumped but once before: Red Ver Halen, 23, and Forrest Pittman, 22. Red's sweetheart, Miss Gaye Carleton, kept her fingers crossed as he dropped 1,200 feet before opening his new triangular 'chute. Asked later over the loud speaker system if she would be willing to marry a parachute jumper, she replied: "Yes."

The program closed with the presentation of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S silver and gold trophy to the "outstanding amateur pilot" at the show --Ellis E. Eno. Three first places won him the award. Eno flew to Chicago from Fort Dodge, Ia., his home, bringing his wife with him.

Judges were Lew Churbuck, J. Rosecrans, Bernard Keegan, and L. A. Vilas. Honorary judges were Maj. Reed Landis, Thomas F. White Jr., Maurice L. Horner Jr., and Conger Reynolds.

Col. Roscoe Turner, famed speed pilot, served as starter.

3 NATIONALITIES FIND CITY HAS NO ROOM FOR HATE

Mayor Sounds Keynote as 100,000 Celebrate.

One hundred thousand persons of Swedish, Polish, and German descent held picnics and celebrations yesterday in the Chicago area.

In St. Paul park, Morton Grove, more than 30,000 gathered for the annual outing of Illinois' 48 lodges of the Independent Order of Svithiod. It is the largest annual gathering of Swedish-Americans in the state. They met to celebrate Midsummer day, an annual festival in Sweden. Green garlands decorated a forty foot pole which was raised at 2:15 p. m. Folk dancing and singing followed.

Svithiod Singers Entertain.

The picnickers also were entertained by the Svithoid Singing Club of Chicago and other choral and musical units. Among those who spoke were Judge Oscar F. Nelson, Otto Hanson, national secretary of the order, and Bernard Johnson, national grand master.

Mayor Kelly was the principal speaker at the German day outing in Riverview park. Nearly 50,000 persons attended the celebration, which lasted from 10 a. m. until midnight. It was sponsored by an association combining about 200 German-American organizations.

Swastika Emblem Flies.

Hanging next to a huge American flag on the picnic grounds was a German flag of equal size bearing the swastika emblem. Athletic exhibitions by Turnverein groups and songs by German singing societies featured the entertainment program.

Mayor Kelly was cheered when he said:

"Despite the troubles in nations overseas Chicago has no room for hatred because of differences in race or creed."

Capt. George H. Weideling, president of the German Day association, and other local German leaders also spoke.

Poles Stage Colorful Parade.

Consul General Waclaw Gawronski addressed 25,000 Polish-Americans at the Polish day outing in Humboldt park. Preceding the speeches men, women, and children in native costumes and men in uniforms of the Polish army paraded through northwest side streets.

The meeting was held near the Kosciusko monument. Mayor Kelly also spoke at this outing, as did Mrs. Honorata Wolowska, president of the Polish Woman's alliance.

Warns Veterans That War Traps Are Set for America

A warning against attempts to involve this country in another European war was sounded yesterday by Oscar E. Carlstrom, former attorney general. He spoke before 5,000 persons at the memorial services in the Morrison hotel which ended the thirteenth annual convention of the 33d Division War Veteran's association.

John E. Newcomb, oldest 33d division Vet.

Carlstrom was commander during the war of Battery B, 123d field artillery of the division.

Assails War Propaganda.

"Facing us for the last year or more are the evidences of widespread propaganda to bring the nation to a point where we can be forced into another futile and destructive world war conflict," he said. "Every thinking American should exert influence to avoid such a catastrophe."

Earlier in the day a wreath was placed on the grave in Rosehill cemetery of Maj. Gen. George Bell Jr., wartime commander of the division.

One of those at the convention was John E. Newcomb, Augusta, Ill. Now 78 years old, he is not only a world war veteran but also fought with the 5th Illinois infantry in the Spanish-American war.

"Raised Hell" to Get Over There.

When he enlisted for service in 1918 he was 57 years old and held the rank of sergeant major.

"I broke my leg in camp down in Houston, Tex., and they told me I'd have to stay in bed till the war was over," he said yesterday. "I raised lots of hell as soon as my leg got well —and I got over there with the 123d machine gun battalion. I celebrated my 58th birthday in Paris."

Harry A. Daly was elected president for 1940, succeeding Raymond L. Keegan. Other new officers are Joseph A. Jarowski, first vice president; Robert M. Wigglesworth, second vice president, and Percy Marshall, third vice president.

SEIZE KILLER OF EMPLOYER AND WIFE'S FATHER

Portsmouth, O., June 26.—(AP)—Frank Case, 43 years old, a farm hand sought throughout the night for the slaying of a man and woman near Hillsboro, O., was captured east of here today.

Members of the state highway patrol reported the fugitive was taken without a shot being fired. The man was found on a street in Wheelersburg, O., patrolmen reported.

Mrs. James Richmond, 46, upon whose farm Case was employed, was shot and killed in the yard of her home last night, three bullets entering her heart and breast, Sherif Howard Dunseith said. Later, Dan Setty, 73, of Sinking Spring, well to do farmer and father-in-law of Case, was slain in his home, shot twice in the head. After Case's escape highway police blocked all roads in seven counties in an effort to head him off.

Youth Trips Over His Dog, Tumbles Into Lake, Drowns

Galesburg, Ill., June 25.—[Special.]—Warren McCune, 18 years old, of East Galesburg was drowned in a lake near that village this afternoon. Companions said he was walking along an embankment and tripped over his dog, falling into the water.

BRAZILIAN ARMY CHIEF INSPECTS RANDOLPH FIELD

San Antonio, Tex., June 25.—(AP)—A seventeen gun salute boomed today at Randolph field, Texas' West Point of the air, to welcome the party of Gen. Pedro Aurelio de Goes Monteiro, chief of staff of the Brazilian army. High ranking army officers, civilian officials, and an honor guard of 150 men greeted the party which landed in six air corps transport planes from Barksdale field, Louisiana, shortly after noon.

Gen. P. A. Monteiro.

As Gen. Monteiro stepped from his plane, the national anthems of Brazil and the United States were played.

Among those greeting the general, who is touring the United States to inspect military and naval defenses, were Maj. Gen. H. J. Brees, commander of the 8th corps area; Maj. Gen. Walter Krueger, commander of Fort Sam Houston, and Mayor Maury Maverick of San Antonio.

Three hundred planes, largest number ever massed at Randolph field, were placed on the hangar line to illustrate the various types of training and fighting machines.

THE TRUTH ABOUT TELEVISION (4)

By CALEB

REAL, and at first regard "impossible," problems confront both present and prospective television stations, makers of receivers, and that final arbiter of television's future—the actual set-user.

One problem is "horizon telecasting range," which startlingly delimits studio operations. The present highest transmitter antenna, for example, is General Electric's, located on the 1500-foot summit of Mt. Helderberg, near Schenectady. Its maximum range is the distance from that point to where the eye meets the horizon, about fifty miles. The second highest transmitter antenna is NBC's, atop the 1200-foot Empire State Building, with a range of forty miles. Owners of television receivers situated beyond those restricted ranges would merely be —shall we say, philanthropists?

The reason for this unique handicap lies in the difference between television's "ultra-high frequency waves" and radio waves. Where the latter bend to follow the earth's curvature—television waves travel in straight lines, shooting off into space at the horizon. They are at the same time more sensitive than radio waves, tending to bounce off metal and marble structures, as well as to go highly temperamental in the vicinity of diathermy machines or motor ignition systems. This means expensive special antenna and installation costs, running around $50 per set.

Another obstacle for telecaster and public alike lies in the fact that to be profitable, or even self-sustaining, the smallest station must have at least a 100,000 population within its transmitting range. There are only ninety-six such condensed districts in the United States, and while they contain over 45 per cent of the population, they comprise only 6 per cent of the area. This means that if every such metropolitan center were telecasting—over half the population in nine-tenths of the country's extent still could not have television, even if they wanted it!

A third apparently "insuperable" problem is that of program production. To be at all comparable in entertainment value with radio and movie, television's "shows" must be as varied and elaborate—yet incur the heightened cost of "picturization," and an exorbitant rehearsal schedule. As one seasoned investigator puts it, this phase of television production alone is "an operation comparable to that of a theatrical producer who puts on a new show at least once a day, and scraps it after its first performance."

Some final conclusions, based on the current television situation, will be presented in a forthcoming summary.

RAID 130 HOMES IN SEARCH FOR LONDON BOMBERS

Irish Republican Army Blamed by Police.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 25.—Scotland Yard agents raided 130 houses in London today. They questioned more than 200 persons suspected of having some knowledge of last night's bombings which injured nineteen in the theater district.

Twenty suspects were jailed and will appear in the police lineup for identification tomorrow. Ten others seized in the raids were released after questioning.

Chief Constable Canning, who returned from Canada with King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of England last week, was in charge of the raids on suspected hangouts of members of the outlawed Irish Republican army. One hundred police cars were used. Gelignite was found in some homes. This is the explosive used in recent bombings which have been blamed on the Irish Republican army.

Four Seized at Scene Freed.

Four men arrested at the scene of one of last night's bombings, which caused damage estimated at from $50,000 to $75,000, were freed today. Among them was a man a crowd wanted to lynch. Police said he was innocent.

Scotland Yard authorities said "new blood" in the Irish Republican army in London was responsible for the blasts.

Following the bombings railroad stations, power houses, postoffices and other public buildings in London were put under heavy guard.

Irishmen marched past the scene of the bombings today in a parade in honor of Wolfe Tone, Irish patriot. Speakers attacked British imperialism.

Says Bombings Will Go On.

One speaker mounted the base of the Nelson column in Trafalgar square and shouted: "The bombs will not stop until English institutions and the English army are taken away from Ireland." The paraders carried orange, green, and white banners which read: "Ireland unfree will never be at peace."

Police at Dublin fought demonstrators when an Irish Republican army unit arrived for a banned procession to Tone's grave. The police halted the march.

Soldiers sped from Cork and Kilworth in Ireland to Fermoy, County Cork, to help civic guards in a fight with Republicans who attempted to parade.

Cardinal Arthur Hinsley, archbishop of Westminster, warned that excommunication faces those guilty of the London bombings.

"The Catholic church strongly and clearly condemns secret societies which plot against the church or state," he said.

BAR GROUP RAPS JUDGES FOR HIT, MISS SENTENCES

Annapolis, Md., June 25.—(AP)—State prisons are largely "failures in rehabilitating offenders" and American judges too frequently resort to hit-or-miss "hunches" in sentencing criminals, the American Bar association committee on probation, parole and prisons reported today.

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland, a committee member, released the report which found flaws in the administration of criminal justice from pre-sentencing through release from prison. The report will be presented next week at the bar association convention.

Careless judges also are addicted to the practice of imposing more lenient sentences if the prisoner pleads guilty and saves the state the cost of trial, the committee said. The report held the practice "deserving of censure."

Likewise, the report asserted judges were "carelessly lenient" in allowing probation of youthful first offenders.

COMMERCE BODY ASKS PASSAGE OF MEASURE FOR SLUM CLEARANCE

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday urged the state legislature to pass four bills which remain on the calendar before the last session Friday.

One would create a joint revenue commission to report on the financial problem of municipalities. Another would improve the delinquent real estate situation by appointing conservators in cases where debt owners might be found to be wasting or damaging property they were about to lose to tax delinquent property buyers.

Two other senate bills would provide for the creation of public service building corporations to eliminate slums by private capital and stimulate building generally. Others provide for establishing the Illinois Development council to promote industrial, agricultural, and recreational resources.

SECRET WITNESS NAMES 2 OTHERS IN LABOR KILLING

Picks Photos of Suspects from Police Files.

Two more suspects were linked yesterday to the labor slaying of a Wieboldt truck driver by a secret witness who on Saturday implicated a labor union official in the April 12 shooting.

Search for the pair began when their photographs were picked from bureau of identification files by the witness. One of those sought, he said, fired a revolver at the Wieboldt truck in which James Lawrence, an employé of the stores, was riding. Lawrence was killed by the shots fired from a car which drew up beside the company truck at Walton and Paulina streets during labor disturbances that resulted from the picketing of the stores.

Accused of Wielding Bat.

The accused labor union official is Oscar Kofkin, business agent of the Taxicab Drivers' union. According to Assistant State's Attorney Richard Devine, the witness said Kofkin was in the assassin's car but took no part in the firing. Instead, the witness asserted, Kofkin leaped from the death car with a baseball bat in his hand to chase Roy Rodgers, 2233 South Oakley avenue, driver of the Wieboldt truck. He did not catch him, the witness told officials, but shattered the baseball bat on the pavement in making a wild swing at the driver.

Admits Picketing Store.

Kofkin admitted to police who arrested him Friday night that he had been a picket at one of the Wieboldt stores. He denied any connection with the killing. His union is affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which was seeking to force Wieboldt drivers to join one of its affiliate unions. The labor controversy was settled in May.

A murder charge will be filed against Kofkin today as a result of the secret witness' testimony, Devine said.

Koury, Phoenix automobile salesmen. The prosecution charges he lured the salesmen to a lonely desert spot last April 29 by telling them he was a prospective customer and wished a demonstration of an automobile. He was arrested in Johnson City, Tenn., on May 7.

BILLIONS FOR SOCIALISM.

The new 3 billion 860 million spending scheme Mr. Roosevelt has laid before congress for approval is timed in part for the pre-convention campaign before the nominations of 1940. There is just a year to go. Some of the money would be spent in that year although the plan would embrace all of another term. Political money would be increased for administration uses and in addition a continuity of program would connect the second term with the third.

There would be an additional reason for saying that Mr. Roosevelt, having put his hands to the plow, could not be allowed to take them off and go home. As Senator Byrd of Virginia pointed out, the money would be charged to the contingent liability of the government and the debt limitation would be avoided. The contingent liabilities are represented by the indebtedness of the governmental corporations, the extra-departmental government which carries on the socialistic enterprises of the administration such as the mortgage business, the making and selling of electric power, and the purchase of commodities. The theory of these enterprises is that they are self-liquidating. The economist and financier knows they are not. The revolutionary politician knows they are not intended to be.

One self-liquidating proposal is to make loans to other nations for purchases here. Brazil owes American bondholders $360,000,000. The agreement was to pay $36,000,000 a year. Since November, 1937, nothing has been paid. Three months ago the American government lent Brazil an additional $19,200,000. That is the sort of liquidation contemplated.

It is proposed to lend the railroads money for new equipment. Many of the roads cannot meet their fixed charges now. They will not be able to until they can get more net income. More debt without more net income brings them nearer government ownership. That is a part of the Socialist program. The revolutionary politicians in control of the government will put the money out not for hire, not to be repaid, but to obtain the properties into which it goes. The new spending has two purposes—to carry elections and to create the socialized government of the third term.

THE OPTOMETRY BILL.

A number of changes in the law regulating the practice of optometry are under consideration at Springfield. Among them is a provision which would forbid an optometrist to advertise the price of his services or of the eye-glasses he has for sale.

In defense of this provision it is said that unscrupulous spectacle shops advertise free eye tests and glasses at very low prices in order to lure customers and then induce the customers to buy something at a far higher price. How extensive this practice may be and how much harm results from it we do not know, but the proposed remedy, at all events, is a good deal worse.

False representation, like malpractice, can be and should be punished. Whether the attempt to induce a customer to spend more money than he expected to pay is false representation is another question; certainly most merchants the world over are guilty of this offense, if it is an offense, every day. At any rate, the remedy for the alleged evil does not and cannot lie in depriving the citizen of the right to advertise his business if he wants to do so. That is his freedom of the press and the constitution protects him in the use of it. If he abuses his freedom he can be punished.

We should expect the optometrists to be among the first to recognize the importance of maintaining constitutional safeguards. They must know that their claim to professional status is vigorously disputed by the eye doctors. The ophthalmologists, with their standing as doctors of medicine, will assert on the slightest provocation that the ordinary optometrist should not be allowed to prescribe lenses. The medical men can cite horrible examples in support of their position. If the freedom of the press does not include the right of a man to advertise the price of his wares it seems pretty clear that there is nothing in the constitution which would protect an optometrist in the right to practice his profession. If the freedom of the press can be denied because some men have abused it and no one has taken the trouble to punish them for so doing, the right to practice optometry as a profession can be denied for no better reason than that some men licensed as optometrists have made mistakes.

THE MIGRATORY RELIEFER.

The house of representatives at Springfield has passed a bill requiring three years' residence in the state for persons eligible to be placed on relief rolls. As spokesman for the bill Representative Joseph L. Rategan said that Chicago has become the dumping ground for the entire country. It is estimated that 2,000 unemployed come up from the south every month.

The senate should agree with the house that the restriction proposed in the bill is both equitable and necessary. The responsibility of a community for its own indigent was established in English law long before the colonies were settled. Elizabeth said that no Englishman should starve but also that his parish or his shire was accountable for him and that he could not wander about the land, imposing himself where he would.

Certain centers of population such as Chicago will attract the footloose, the indigent, and idle as well as the industrious and ambitious. Greater opportunities for unearned as well as earned benefits will appear where the greatest number of people live. The principle of local responsibility is a just one and it is the only workable one. Some states, where a soft climate also attracts, such as California and Florida, use force to keep the undesirable migrants out of their territory and at times seem to have overstepped the law in doing so. The justification they gave for themselves is that they would be entirely swamped if the itinerants could enter freely as they wished and settle themselves upon the state.

Illinois does not propose an unreasonable limitation, but one which is orderly and just. The cities of the state itself have all they can do to stretch their available money to meet their present and growing demands upon them.

THE COLOR PICTURES OF ROYALTY.

The letter of a lady who criticizes the method by which THE TRIBUNE's color pictures of the royal garden party were taken is published in the Voice of the People in the adjoining column. The lady is indignant, her comment is severe, and, as can be observed, she does not conceal a low opinion of newspaper photographers and newspaper men.

Frequently the news photographer works under many difficulties to get the pictures which the newspaper readers want to see and in which, it can be said, the subjects photographed generally want to be seen. For the most part the appearance of the photographer means the success of an event, in the minds of its participants, and the absence of the picture taker would be regretted, if not resented. Nevertheless, the photographers with their equipment necessarily bring the work-aday world in contact, sometimes disturbing, with a gathering whose formality, if not dignity and decorum, is disturbed by the men at work.

The visit of the king and queen to these shores was for show purposes. It was to be a public appearance and if it had been ignored it would have been a pitiful failure. The visit was to the American people in the hope they would receive it kindly, be enthusiastic about it, and reward the patient king and queen by an increase of good will toward their country. To obtain good results the royal tourists had to be followed and attended by reporters, photographers, and broadcasters. The king and queen, it would seem, were much more aware of what was required than were some of the functionaries who made the rules governing the publicity.

THE TRIBUNE tried an adventurous experiment in getting pictures of the arrival of George and Elizabeth in Washington and of the garden party. This newspaper undertook to take color pictures and, having them transmitted by wire and carried by plane, publish them in illustration of the news reports the next day. No newspaper had ever done that before and, although the wire color photographs were just what they were expected to be—pioneer work—they and the color pictures received by plane were the most interesting and valuable pictorial achievements recording the royal visit and were so recognized by the newspaper profession and the public.

The formalities of the garden party prohibited the setting up of camera equipment and the Tribune photographers packed up their paraphernalia and retired when asked to do so by the officials in charge of the arrangements. A photographer with a small camera, however, was able unobtrusively to get several shots of the colorful scene in the garden and these were printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of June 18. We believe that our readers enjoyed them. They presented the scene as only color photography could. The taking of the pictures was so unobtrusive that the guests were unaware of it. THE TRIBUNE's belief that no offense was given is strengthened by the fact that the White House has asked for copies of the pictures, some to be sent to London for the royal family.

In making this notable experiment with color photography and wire transmission THE TRIBUNE was advancing the progress of American journalism. Progress finds few friends in government and newspaper progress has been no exception to that general rule. Reporting itself used to meet the repressions which news photography has had to overcome. There was a time in English journalism when the government, unable to suppress reporting in any other fashion, denied the reporters the privilege of being present at parliamentary sessions. A man taking notes would be thrown out. One reporter, named Memory Woodhall, was able to sit through a long session without taking a note and reproduce the debates accurately.

Public authority in the person of the uncreative man, often stupid and easily alarmed, is afraid of progress. He fears whatever he does not understand and cannot control, just as authority feared Galileo and his telescope. In our own times the automobile met stubborn, hostile government. The Tribune color photographers did not get any consideration or assistance from the officials, but they got their pictures, and no one was more interested or gratified by the success than the persons who found themselves in the color reproductions.

DUST BOWL TREES.

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace sees in the landscaped Dust Bowl a "bread basket for the nation," on the strength of this year's wheat crop prospects. Whether or not the crop is due to the famous shelter belt of trees, or merely to the caprice of nature, is not clear at this distance. In the past the Dust Bowl speculators—it would hardly do to call them farmers—have harvested crops only in moist seasons; in times of drouth the crop gamblers have seen their fields billowing away in dust clouds. What will astonish eastern farmers is not the fact that there will be a crop in the Dust Bowl; rather, they will goggle at the rate of growth of those trees in the shelter belt. A Washington dispatch quotes Secretary Wallace as saying that, despite the widely held belief that trees will not grow on the great plains the 10-inch to 18-inch seedlings planted there in 1935 and 1936 are now "30 to 35 feet high." Apparently the Dust Bowl produces prodigies, when it does produce.

Another Brain Teaser.

How many readers, inquires James F. Heyda, can correctly fill in the dashes in the following sentences? Each group of letters forms a word containing all the letters in the preceding word (but not necessarily in the same order) plus one additional letter. When properly filled in, the result is consistent in meaning:

"— do not like — — said the man with the black — — —. I prefer this other — — — — for when you — — — — — a man you — — — — — — a — — — — — — — amount of evidence. The — — — — — — — — against — — — — — — — — — will come when the — — — — — — — — — — of this is realized.

Remember the "tulgey wood" through which the Jabberwock came whiffling? It's been discovered on Route 54 just south of the point at which that route joins Route 64 east of Villa Park. Some one who must be an "Alice" fan has opened a roadhouse under that name.

CUFF NOTES.

Friends of Marian Anderson, the singer, expect her to be married this summer. She has been looking for a house in Connecticut. They are not sure whether it will be an officer on Mayor La Guardia's force—or a scientist in Philadelphia. . . . We forgot to mention that Herbert Marshall will be Helen Hayes' leading man when she opens in Ladies and Gentlemen next month in San Francisco. . . . At a recent Lotos club luncheon in New York given distinguished visiting English musicians (Sir Adrian Boult and Arthur Bliss) some one asked, "What is form in music?" And some one answered, "Lily Pons." . . . Miss Pons and Husband Andre Kostelanetz will appear in Chicago together late in July for Petrillo and the musicians' union. Here for three days before they appear in Milwaukee, they are looking for air conditioned quarters or a boat. . . . Dali's Declaration.

Surrealist Painter Salvator Dali, angered because the amusement area of the New York World's Fair has forbidden him to erect the image of a woman with the head of a fish, has launched a broadside.

"These are their exact words," bulletins Mr. Dali in a "Declaration of the Independence of the Imagination." "A woman with the tail of a fish is possible; a woman with the head of a fish is impossible."

* * * *

Mr. Dali goes on to state his opinions, in black type on a pale green foot long folder:

"This decision on the part of the committee seems to me an extremely grave one, deserving all the light possible cast upon it. . . . I have always believed that the first man who had the idea of terminating a woman's body with the tail of a fish must have been a pretty fair poet, but I am equally certain that the second man who repeated the idea was nothing but a burocrat. In any case, the inventor of the first siren's tail would have had my difficulties with the committee of the amusement area. Had there been a similar committee in immortal Greece, fantasy would have been banned, and what is worse, the Greeks would never have created and handed down to us their sensational and truculently surrealist mythology. . . ."

JAPAN—LAND OF OPPOSITES

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.—Japan is truly a land of opposites, and the more one studies the customs of the people the more he is convinced that this is a strange country.

Most people know that the Japanese, like their neighbors, the Chinese, read from right to left and up and down, but it is not so generally known that they do hundreds of other things in just the opposite way from peoples of other countries.

In operating a plane Japanese carpenters pull rather than push. They also pull their saws in cutting wood. The women put their irons in the fire rather than fire in their irons. In using scissors they press down the tips rather than the handle.

The Japanese stand umbrellas not in use with the handles down. In carrying a closed umbrella they dangle them from a string attached to the tip rather than the handle. Japanese swords are stood up hilt down when put on display. If they are displayed horizontally the cutting edges are turned upward. When worn the edges, unlike in other countries, face the wearers.

Wine in Japan is heated, not iced. In America a drinker hands the bottle to his companion. In Japan the drinker keeps the bottle and hands his cup to his companion. Japanese after dinner speeches are made before dinner is served.

Japanese beckon with their fingers turned down. The sails of their ships taper downward rather than upward, as is the case with ships in western countries. The oars of their boats are in back instead of on the sides. They row standing up rather than sitting down. Japanese fishermen haul their boats on the shore stern first, whereas American fishermen haul their craft with the bow in front. Japanese farmers back their horses into their stalls.

Japanese footnotes are placed at the top of the page. Book markers are inserted so they are visible from the bottom rather than from the top of the pages. In America people address their letters: Mr. John Smith, 1544 State street, Chicago, Ill., U. S. A. The letters in Japan are addressed: U. S. A., Ill., Chicago, State street, No. 1544, Smith John Mr.

It is almost uncanny to what extent things can be done in the opposite way and still make sense. Japanese paste stamps on envelopes on the left hand rather than the right hand corner. The last thing an American in writing a letter does is to set down his name. The last thing the Japanese do is to write the name of the addressee.

WHEN THE BABE ARRIVES AHEAD OF TIME.

EVERY now and then a baby will arrive before the expected date and parents and relatives may be greatly concerned over the question of survival. Curiously enough these mites have a strong hold upon life, particularly if body heat can be maintained and good nursing is available. Upon this latter service, as well as the diet, everything depends.

Most hospitals are provided with incubators—pieces of equipment which are designed to control temperature, humidity, and oxygen. Thus the tiny bit of humanity lies in an ideal environment with every physical factor just as it should be. In an emergency an ordinary basket with some hot water bottles may serve for a short time as a fair substitute. The lives of the Dionne quintuplets were preserved because a wise physician used his native store of common sense. Once the babe has begun to digest food growth will proceed rapidly. Many a stalwart man or woman of today entered the world tipping the scales at but little more than two pounds.

We must not forget that the digestive tube is undeveloped and that the stomach does not possess its usual tolerance for nutriment. It is well, therefore, to delay all nourishment by mouth for at least twenty-four hours—perhaps longer. The need for fluid may be met by injecting minute amounts of normal salt solution—three to five teaspoonfuls—beneath the skin. This liquid must be sterile, carefully prepared, and administered slowly.

Next comes the problem of establishing the functions of digestion and the quantity at each feeding must be small. As soon as matters are going well there is little danger in supplying forty calories per pound in each twenty-four hours. For example, if we have a three pound infant approximately 120 calories will be safe. This may be translated into terms of food when we realize that one ounce of milk furnishes about twenty calories. Thus six ounces or its equivalent will take care of the necessary daily quota.

But this cannot be administered via a bottle because some of these children will not suck; neither can it be given in three meals. The first feeding may be undertaken within 24 to 36 hours and consists of six or eight drops of mother's milk—using a medicine dropper with a soft rubber tip. This is repeated every three hours. The next day water is given between meals—not more than 40 to 50 drops.

Breast milk is essential. If it cannot be produced by the mother it must be obtained from an outside source. Many hospitals employ wet nurses regularly so as to have this vital fluid on hand. Artificial mixtures are rarely resorted to until the youngster weighs about five pounds. Now and then one of these tots will be able to suck, in which event, an ounce bottle capped with a small nipple—such as the perforated bulb of a medicine dropper—is useful. Care must be taken not to have too large an opening as the flow may be too rapid.

Anywhere from five to six teaspoonfuls of mother's milk will nearly fill the stomach. If it is well borne the portion may be augmented slightly day after day. The advantage of fractional feedings is that diarrhea rarely occurs if an aseptic technique is followed scrupulously. Should it come, however, a prompt change in food is indicated. Occasionally it is wise to withhold all nutriment for a day, at the same time giving water or weak tea freely.

Certain other measures are of value and one of the most important is the introduction of a 5 per cent glucose solution beneath the skin. This serves as food as well as fluid. The entire management is an attempt to adapt nourishment to the baby's powers of absorption. We have learned that forcing the alimentary tract to perform beyond its ability may defeat the objective quickly. When one of these little patients starts to gain we may know that we are on the right track and that within a few years he will catch up with those who arrived at full term.

INGROWING HAIRS AFTER SHAVING.

L. M. F. writes: I have tried everything I know to correct ingrowing hairs which develop after shaving but I am still bothered. Is there a cure?

REPLY.

After a close shave the outer layers of the skin are removed. In addition bacteria may become buried within one or more follicles. The irritation caused by the razor, sometimes by strong shaving lotions, adds to the trouble. In fact the skin surface may heal over with the result that the oncoming hair will become imbedded in the heaped up cells which surround it. Some pus usually forms.

Use a good grade of shaving soap, a sharp razor, and avoid cutting against the grain. Once over is enough for you. Apply hot towels several times following the procedure and make certain that every particle of soap has been removed. If you use a brushless cream, cleansing is equally important. Finish up with a dilute alcohol lotion of about the strength of extract of witch hazel. A sterile dusting powder will be helpful.

ITCHING EARS.

M. H. writes: I have itching scaling ears and have been told by a physician that the condition is similar to athlete's foot. I have been treated for a long time, but am still bothered. Is this a permanent difficulty? If not, what is the cure?

REPLY.

The cause may be ringworm or a sensitivity to some food or external irritant. Hair or eyelash dyes or contact with fur should be investigated. A skilled dermatologist can help you.

LOOKING FOR A BLEACH.

R. V. writes: When I was a child I had jaundice. This left me with a dark complexion. Can anything be done about it?

REPLY.

In most of our novels the hero is tall, dark, and handsome. A bleaching process—even if possible—might not be desirable. On the other hand, if bile is still being poured into the circulation, your physician can aid in stopping the absorption.

PIGEONTOES.

M. F. writes: Should anything be done about a three year old child with pigeontoes?

REPLY.

A very slight toeing in is not only natural but desirable. If the tendency is marked, however, your physician should be consulted. Some adjustment of the shoes will solve the problem.

CALLS US BOORISH LOUTS.

Chicago, June 18. — This morning's article regarding the photographer who, with almost incredible boorishness, forced his way into a party to which he had not been invited, must leave most of your readers, as it left me, gasping. It brought to memory the personification of THE TRIBUNE by a lady from Indiana, some years ago, as a slovenly lout with his feet on the table and food stains on his vest.

Are newspaper men a class apart, entirely without good taste or even a sense of decency? MARCELLA M. PATTEN.

LET'S ALL GET GOING!

Chicago, June 20.—If THE TRIBUNE would perform a truly patriotic duty its staff of cartoonists and feature writers would concentrate on the various phases of civic activity and development. There are other needs in Chicago besides an elevated highway, which THE TRIBUNE is so zealously urging.

The Chicago subway should be the forerunner of numerous other civic developments. The proposed razing of the Market street L stub, mentioned in today's paper, is a bit of gratifying news. North State street should be widened; Congress street opened up to the Chicago river, Navy Pier rehabilitated, and countless other civic needs attended to by 1943, when Chicago can throw another "party" to celebrate its further progress in the first decade following its memorable "Century of Progress."

A constant interest in civic development, as reflected by the press, would instill a sense of civic pride and patriotism in our people which at present is sadly lacking. Let's all get moving!

BACK PAGES FOR CRIME.

Chicago, June 22.—If the association of commerce people, who are urging support of the Greater Chicago campaign really want to have good results, let them work to remove from the headlines of our Chicago papers the reports from the high-powered crime reporters, leaving space for the really fine things being done to improve Chicago.

Relegate the dear crime reporter to fine print on a page so remote that it would be read only by those who have a lust for crime.

Let a campaign be started to convince the world that real Chicagoans are fine, high minded people. L. Mc E. C.

THE NEW DEAL: A DEFINITION.

Chicago, June 23.—Why don't you have a contest on the best definition of the New Deal? I think the one I found is the best and perhaps the earliest. Here it is:

. . . "But man, proud man!
Dressed in a little brief authority;
Most ignorant of what he's most assured,
His glassy essence, like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven
As make the angels weep."

How many of your readers know where it came from? L. K. W.

A CHANCE FOR YOUNG MEN.

Chicago, June 21.—Yes, W. G. Echols [the motorman], thousands of young men will be placed at work if the traction unification ordinance is passed, providing for a pension to aged employés of the Surface Lines in service for 25 years or more.

I am one of the waiting thousands hoping that when that bill is passed and put up to the people of Chicago they will O. K. it. Mr. Echols and his fellow workmen may feel assured of strong support from the unselfish and clear thinking people of our city, the strap hangers. HOPEFUL.

THOSE COLOR PICTURES.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 22.—Permit me as a reader of THE TRIBUNE for many years to extend to you and Mr. George H. Greb appreciation and compliments on his noteworthy accomplishment in securing by sheer grit the beautiful and exclusive color photos of the Lindsay garden party which had earlier been promised TRIBUNE readers and twenty other associated papers.

The pictures were so well placed, selection of site and arrangement so pleasing under such tremendous odds as he faced [and the presence of the great included], that they merit more praise than can be given, although it is all in the day of a news and picture hound. May he take more long shot chances.

Each new adventure, improvement in service, such as new mechanical equipment, transmission, etc., is gratefully appreciated by the readers even though they seldom take time to write. The great strides made by THE TRIBUNE mechanically—like the redesigning of the complicated color press equipment in connection with the great Goss organization—the new high speed black press, constantly expanding photo adventures, paper production, etc., are very interesting to close readers of THE TRIBUNE.

When a youngster of eight I used to deliver THE TRIBUNE in Marion, Ind. I can recall I was proud to deliver it because I felt then it was an outstanding sheet, a paper much better liked than even the Cincinnati Enquirer and the St. Louis papers, and my interest in THE TRIBUNE has never wavered.

Timely reports of plant improvements, descriptions of plant service to all, Tribune buildings, the men who do it, the boats, etc., interest all from time to time.

My children have read almost exclusively, from the time they could sprawl on the floor, Tribune comics; now they are 15, 16, and 18 and still Tribune comics are the first order of the day on Sunday, and no day is too blustery for them to go out for a SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Hoping for many more years of successful service to your readers.

LOWELL H. NELSON.

HELPFUL TO SINGERS.

Chicago, June 22.—In your last Sunday edition your able music critic, Cecil Smith, had an article on voice that was most interesting and helpful to the singing world and enlightening to the general public. It should be syndicated.

I congratulate THE TRIBUNE on having a man who thoroughly understands his subject. His constructive criticism should be read by all artists and students. HANNA BUTLER.

ESTATE PROBATE.

Chicago, June 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father passed away three months ago leaving a will dividing his property equally among four heirs.

1. Can cash be settled out of court? There are no dependents. Does it all have to be probated? He left a house, cash, and a mortgage.
2. The stepmother is going to get a lawyer. Do you think two of the heirs would get the same results by not having a lawyer?
3. What are the average fees?
4. When do they get paid?
5. What is better—on a percentage basis—or now?
6. How could two of the heirs really find out what the man owns? It seems two of the heirs don't care to let the other two know what is really going on. W. A.

1. If the estate is to be probated, then all assets should be inventoried. Ordinarily the personal representative does not take the chances that would be involved in distributing before the expiration of the year for filing claims.
2. Ordinarily it is not necessary for the different beneficiaries to be separately represented. You are in a better position than we are to guess whether there are exceptional chances of overreaching in your case.
3. Depends on facts not before us.
4. Depends largely on your agreement with your attorney.
5. Depends on additional facts.
6. An inventory should be filed in the probate proceedings.

STREET PARKING.

Chicago, June 22.—[Friend of the People.]—A filthy, dilapidated old truck is parked on the street in front of our address every night, all night, including Sundays. It is unsightly in appearance and a disgrace to the street. All the surrounding neighbors would appreciate it greatly if you would see that this practice is discontinued. W. E.

The investigating officer issued summons for the violation of Sec. No. 22 two nights parking [illegible], made returnable to Room 810, City Hall, and instructed the owner to remove the truck to a private garage, which he did in the presence of the officer. Instructions have been issued to keep this location under observation and prevent any cause for future complaint.

CIO FAVORITISM ON TRANSCRIPTS DENIED BY NLRB

Defend Free Service to Employers' Accusers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 25.—[Special.]—J. Warren Madden, chairman of the national labor relations board, denied today any discrimination in favor of a C. I. O. union in furnishing transcripts of the testimony in the pending case against the International Harvester company in Chicago.

David Beznar, attorney for an independent employes' union, charged that a prohibitive rate for the transcripts was charged by the Daniel W. Ross reporting agency which has the reporting contract for the labor board. Beznar said his union was unable to afford the price but that the C. I. O. union was able to obtain access to a transcript without cost through the labor board.

Contract Required by Law.

"The labor board," said Mr. Madden, "is required by law to let a contract for reporting its hearings. We let a contract to the lowest bidder, the Ross agency. The price they charge for transcripts is on a par with the price of transcripts in the courts.

"There was no discrimination in favor of the C. I. O. union by the labor board. In the Harvester case the C. I. O. union is the complaining witness. The C. I. O. union is therefore associated with the prosecution by the labor relations board. It is therefore entirely fitting and proper that the labor board should share its transcript with the C. I. O. union, just as the government prosecutor in the courts shares the court transcript with the complaining witness."

Attorneys in labor board cases accuse the board of using the costly official transcript of hearings as a means of coercing the companies to yield to union demands. They charge that the same penalty has been applied to independent unions which the big outside unions want exterminated in their favor.

Get Favored Price.

Under the contract by which the labor board has given a monopoly on stenographic work for all its hearings to the Daniel W. Ross reporting agency of Washington, the board and the complaining union get a favored price, compared with that charged to company and independent unions for the official transcript. No private stenographers are allowed to enter the proceedings, so the official reporter gets all the business.

This monopolistic contract, awarded on a bidding basis, provides that the board get its transcript of the hearing for no more than 12½ cents a page of about 200 words. Company attorneys charge that the board has gotten its record for as low as 3 cents a page.

The price charged to the company involved in the case is 45 cents a page for regular copy, for delivery within seven days after the hearing. However, in day by day proceedings, it usually is necessary to get "7 o'clock copy" at the figure of $1.10 per page. This means the transcript is delivered the next morning.

The intervening or independent union legally is entitled to use the board's transcript also, but such use usually is at the convenience of the board and the complaining union.

Charge Record Is Padded.

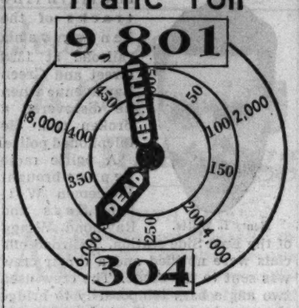
The bludgeoning comes in, according to company lawyers who have had the experience, through padding of the record by board and union lawyers to raise the cost of the case in the hope of forcing the company to yield to union demands. It is alleged that the records are filled with hundreds of pages of immaterial data and unnecessary argument to confuse the issues, which would not be admitted if rules of evidence were observed.

The high cost to companies can be readily illustrated in such labor board cases as Wierton Steel, where the transcript ran about 80,000 pages; in the American Rolling Mills case, where the company got two copies of the daily transcript which totaled between 30,000 and 40,000 pages, and the New York Times case which cost between $13,000 and $14,000 for the transcript alone.

In the American Car company case the cost ran as high as $2 per page.

One case involving an independent employé union on the west coast nearly broke the union because it had to buy a transcript which ran to approximately 18,000 pages.

THE MASSACRE
Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

KILLED IN AUTO CRASH ON 18TH BIRTHDAY EVE

Robert Koon, 633 Bonnie Brae street, River Forest, was killed in an automobile collision Saturday near his family's summer cottage at Silver Lake, Mich. He would have been 18 years old yesterday. His father is M. G. Koon, district coal agent for the Pennsylvania railroad.

Elmer Carlson, 40, of 3960 Milwaukee avenue, was killed early yesterday when he was struck by a hit-and-run automobile driver in front of 4705 Irving Park road.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 391 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 304 were killed in Chicago, where 9,801 were injured in the same period.

TRAIL CONVICTS IN FLIGHT FROM BAND CONCERT

St. Joseph, Mich., June 25.—[Special.]—Southwest Michigan was being searched today for two convicts from the Iona state reformatory who broke away from the prison band, in which they played, and escaped Saturday night. No trace of the pair was found.

The two are Jesse Weaver, also known as Theodore Weaver, 22 years old, and Farrel Lehigh, 18. Both are under long sentences, Weaver for robbery and Lehigh for burglary. They played trombones in the band and participated in a special concert at Wells field in connection with the Chicagoland Music festival preliminaries.

As the players were boarding a bus after the concert Weaver and Lehigh fled. They threw away their gray coats and hats and stole a motorist's car. Policeman Al Stemm chased them seven miles until forced to stop by a tire puncture. A highway blockade was put into effect immediately and was maintained today.

Captured After Attempt to Hold Up Drug Store

Willis Roberts, 23 years old, colored, 3315 South Park way, was arrested yesterday after he attempted to rob a drug store at 4000 Sheridan road. He ordered the manager, Isaac Goldenberg, to open the safe, but fled before the time tumblers released the lock.

SHORTAGE BARED AT LOUISIANA U.; PRESIDENT OUT

our auditors have been making a thorough investigation of the books and records of Louisiana State university.

"Today, as a climax, Dr. James Monroe Smith has tendered me his resignation as president of Louisiana State university, effective immediately.

"Our auditors and investigators are in charge of the situation and making a thorough check, which, on preliminary examination, reveals financial irregularities which may reach a total of several hundred thousand dollars.

Tells of Smith Vanishing.

"Since handing me his resignation, Dr. Smith has disappeared and efforts of Attorney General Ellison and District Attorney Dewey Sanchez to reach him for questioning have been unsuccessful.

"The state police have been instructed by the district attorney and the attorney general to locate Dr. Smith and have him available for a special grand jury investigation which will be called immediately by the district attorney.

"I have called a meeting of the board of administrators for 4 p. m. Monday, at which time the matter will be fully gone into, and at which time I will suggest the appointment of President E. S. Richardson of Louisiana Tech as acting president."

Dr. Smith, a native of Louisiana, has been president of the university for nine years. He was dean of Southwest Louisiana institute when Huey Long brought him here in 1930.

Police are on guard at the university offices, and tomorrow custody of the records and funds is expected to be taken over by Supervisor of Public Funds Shattuck.

Dishonesty Is Charged.

The general affidavit read into the senate committee record by Senator Nye last week charged dishonesty and corruption in connection with the administration of WPA funds at the university and at the private residences of Supt. George Caldwell, Business Manager E. N. Jackson, Gov. Leche, and others.

Gov. Leche has declared he paid for all labor and materials used at his private residence, and a few days ago repeated the declaration he made a month ago before a Washington committee offering to defray expenses up to $10,000 of an investigation body.

MA WINS A RACE OF 500 MILES TO GET BACK HOME

It's Love of Family That Spurs Irma On.

Pa Pigeon was sitting on the eggs as he should have been when a little silver pigeon named Irma swooped down on Chicago to win the 500 mile race from Columbus, Neb.

Pa Pigeon always does the housework, and quite well, too, if ma is doing the racing. And ma never fails to have things well in hand when pa gets home from his races.

That's what puts the speed in pigeon racing—the pigeon's fear that something may have gone wrong with the family—racing officials said yesterday after announcing Irma's victory. Bachelors and old maids, and parents whose children are grown, don't win pigeon races very often.

Irma Comes of Champions.

Irma belongs to Charles Nosal of 2759 South Christiana avenue. Her father, her full brother, and three of her cousins are champions. She has won several races herself.

Irma was one of 1,870 Chicago pigeons that traveled by train to Columbus, where the starter who went with them opened their baskets at 6:10 a. m. Saturday.

That afternoon the pigeon owners climbed into their lofts to await their birds. Secretary Ray Kesteloot of the Greater Chicago Concourse association, and James Ruzek, president of the National Racing association, say pigeons can go 70 miles an hour with a tail wind.

Bucks Head Winds to Win.

But Irma had to buck head winds. It was 6:51 p. m. when Nosal saw her let down her natural landing gear and descend on the roof.

Now, the race isn't over until the pigeon comes through the one way door into its loft so that the owner can take the rubber identification band from its ankle and register it in his racing time clock. So Nosal began calling "Come boy. Come boy." You say that to coax both lady and gentleman pigeons. But Irma had forgotten about being in a hurry. She wasted six minutes before she came in. Then Nosal gave her a drink and a light supper of canary seed. A heavy supper is corn, peas, and rice.

Then ma pigeon was back on her eggs, and pa was looking proud but useless.

SEEK WEDDING GUEST SLAYER IN FATAL SHOOTING

Police yesterday sought the slayer of Henry Izzo, a hoisting engineer employed in the construction of the new State street subway, who was shot and fatally wounded earlier in the day in front of 2635 Taylor street. Izzo was 35 years old and lived at 1009 South Hamilton avenue.

The story of the shooting was given police by John Ciccone, 905 South Kedzie avenue, who was with Izzo. He said that the victim and a man named Frank Monaco had quarreled earlier at a wedding in a west side hall. Izzo was driving him home when Monaco curbed them, Ciccone said.

According to Ciccone, the two quarreled again and Monaco drew a revolver and shot Izzo. He said Monaco tried to fire at him, but the gun jammed. The assailant then fled. Izzo was not armed, Ciccone said. A report that he had a revolver and pointed it at his assailant was erroneous, police said.

Bandits Get Away with $10,000 of Reds' Money

Cincinnati, O., June 25.—[Special.]—Approximately $10,000, representing the concession receipts of Saturday and Sunday games in Crosley field, home of the Cincinnati Reds, was seized tonight by three armed men, who corraled ten concession company employés in their office at the ball park. The concession employés just had finished checking up for the day and had put the money in a safe, but had not yet locked it, when the bandits entered.

GASOLINE BURNS FATAL.

Ralph Cooksy, 35 years old, of Northfield, died last night in the Evanston hospital of burns suffered last Monday when gasoline ignited as he was filling the tank of a donkey engine at the North Western railroad track project in Winnetka.

FACES 3 CHARGES TODAY IN SALE OF FIREWORKS

Harold Rosenberg, an official of a fireworks plant in Franklin Park, will be arraigned in the Racket court today on three city and state charges of violating the fireworks laws. He is 27 years old and lives at 1233 South Lawndale avenue.

Rosenberg was arrested Saturday night by Sergt. Patrick Groark of the Warren avenue station, while in the alleged act of selling firecrackers. The arrest was made in a store at Madison street and Wolcott avenue which police said Rosenberg visited for the purpose of making the sale.

Sergt. Groark confiscated $20 worth of fireworks in Rosenberg's car. He booked him on city charges of illegally transporting and selling fireworks and on a state charge of illegally transporting them.

Workman Suffers Skull Fracture in Elevator Mishap

Peter Timones, 50 years old, resident handyman at the Chicago Journal of Commerce, was seriously injured yesterday in an elevator accident in the plant. He was working on the frame roof of the elevator when it ascended and crushed him against the ceiling of the shaft. His skull was fractured. He was taken to the Henrotin hospital.

Masked Robber Escapes with Liquor Store's $248

A masked robber took $248 last night at the Admiral liquor store, 1028 Argyle street. As he escaped two shots were fired at him by the owner, Jack De Graff. The robber took De Graff into a back room after locking up James Albin, 5047 Kenmore avenue, delivery boy, in the ice box.

PASSERBY, CALLS HELP AND AVERTS WRECK OF TRAIN

Henry L. Watts.

Henry L. Watts, 13037 Green Bay avenue, was strolling yesterday along the main line tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad at 132d street and Green Bay avenue when he discovered a broken rail. He telephoned police.

A police radio report brought Policemen William Sass and Raymond Wragg of the East Side station. Railroad officials were notified and a repair crew was sent to the scene. The crew used two angle bars temporarily to bridge the gap in the rail. A few minutes after the work was completed the road's crack train from Cincinnati, the Southland, was flagged down and proceeded slowly over the makeshift rail. Two hours later, after the passengers were safe in the station, a new rail had been fixed in place.

C. P. Fisher, division superintendent, thanks Watts and the police. They had prevented a wreck.

CARCASS OF DEER CLEW IN HUNT FOR HAYWARD KILLER

Hayward, Wis., June 25.—(AP)—The hunt for Ray Olson took a quickening turn tonight when possemen ran across the fresh, dressed carcass of a deer in a swamp north of Chippewa lake, near the shack where Olson killed two deputies on June 17.

Sheriff George Seehuetter threw a line of deputies around an area of about two and one-half square miles, confident that if Olson, desperate for food, did not appear at daylight the posse would go in and get him before nightfall tomorrow.

The deer had been killed since yesterday morning when Olson, sighted on a bridge, escaped as five shots were fired at him.

Smart Dresses in Sleek Black Win Shoppers

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Say what you will, the fashion merry-go-round never runs down. Just as you're getting play clothes ever, along come the new sleek black town outfits, those devastatingly simple black one piece dresses, and you succumb at first glance.

After a lot of ruffles and too many simple checked ginghams, these sirens in black have decidedly a honey taking way about them. Since the fabrics have a fascinating cling to work with, these summer charmers have everything. Sleeves are short-ish, some reach the elbow, others can be pushed up half way between elbow and shoulder. And the same tricky shirrings, intricate puffings, and dressmaker details go into the sleeves as in the bodice tops.

Dull black jerseys, dull black sagherralike sheers, crêpes, and novelty mixtures are used. Front fullness has been so smoothly achieved that all the necessary slender streamlines are guaranteed.

Bodices are equally intricate in design and flawlessly swathed into folds, puffings, banding, and shirred insets. They do look simple, but to the appreciative shopper they are miracles of fine design, with very modest price marks.

Irresistible finds they are, but not the luxury items they sound, even though you do possess an otherwise lavish summer wardrobe. Elegant dull black costumes of summertime sheer weight always rate. Cool days to come, dress parade occasions where nothing else but such a sophisticated outfit could be worn.

All the new arrivals are perfect for such occasions. Skirts are short enough to be smart; flattering front fullness is contrived by experts. Price marks are just as irresistible as the dresses themselves.

Jean Defrees Is Engaged to J. H. Kellogg

BY JUDITH CASS.

An announcement of especial interest in Winnetka because both families live there is being made today by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Defrees. It is of the engagement of their daughter, Jean, to James Hull Kellogg, son of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Kellogg.

Mr. and Mrs. Defrees and their daughter just have returned from Northampton, Mass., where Miss Defrees received her diploma at Smith college earlier this month. Before entering Smith Miss Defrees was graduated from Westover. She did not choose to make a formal debut, but took part in the festivities of three or four seasons ago.

Mr. Kellogg prepared at the Thatcher school in California and was graduated from Leland Stanford university in 1935. He is engaged in business in Chicago. No plans for the wedding have been made.

The Defrees family will be in Winnetka all summer, with the exception of the month of August, when Mr. and Mrs. Defrees and the children will go to Camden, Me., to be with his mother, Mrs. Joseph H. Defrees.

Arlington Park Opening Draws Race Fans Today.

At approximately 2:15 o'clock this afternoon the old familiar cry, "They're off!" will rise from the grand stands at Arlington Park, the beautiful race track northwest of Chicago, as a month long meeting gets under way. To Arlington every afternoon except Sundays from now through July 29 will go horse racing enthusiasts from every part of the city and suburbs.

They will find the grand stands newly scrubbed and painted and the infield newly landscaped, with at least a million June roses in bloom. The awning on the terrace of the Post and Paddock club has been freshly painted in red and white stripes and a new floor has been laid in the Post and Paddock inclosure of the Jockey club clubhouse.

Winston Guest's Drudgery to Run in the Inaugural.

When Post and Paddock club members look over the day's racing program at luncheon time in their smart club, they will see among the entries in the Inaugural handicap the one horse in Winston Guest's stable, Drudgery. Mr. Guest, the famed polo player, is in Honolulu and won't be here for the Arlington meeting, but he will be looking for a cablegram with good or bad news late this afternoon. He bought Drudgery for about $6,500 from Mrs. Dodge Sloan. The horse also has been entered in the Stars and Stripes handicap, to be run the afternoon of July 4.

There will be a larger field running in the Inaugural than ever before, and a big crowd is expected, provided the weather is fair. Dozens of luncheon parties have been planned at the Post and Paddock, among them one to be given by the club's president and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, who will be entertaining for the newly wed Clarence Prentices [Mrs. Leslie Wheeler].

Others giving luncheon parties are the Warren Wrights, Mrs. Oliver S. Picher, Mrs. John Deere Cady, Britton I. Budd, William H. Stanley, Mrs. William E. Hudson, Charles H. Schweppe, George E. Van Hagen, and Mrs. Walter Peacock.

Mrs. Annette H. Flanders to Give Garden Talks.

Every Monday, starting with July 10 and running through Aug. 14, should be a red letter day on the calendars of Chicago and suburban garden enthusiasts, for Mrs. Annette Hoyt Flanders will give another of her well known courses on landscape gardening. The series of lectures, which will be given at the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest, is intended for the layman, and will cover the designing, planting, and care of gardens.

The talks will last for two hours, starting at 10:30 o'clock, and will be followed by luncheon at the inn. Afternoons will be devoted to visiting the Lake Forest gardens which were planned by Mrs. Flanders. These will include the estates of the William A. P. Pullmans, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Welles.

Mr. and Mrs. Welles [Barbara Scott] are receiving congratulations on the birth of a fourth son yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital. As yet no name has been chosen for the baby.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Taylor have cards out to meet Bishop and Mrs.

Hey, You Kids! It's Party Time for Sally Again

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Time for our summer parties again, boys and girls!

Hundreds of boys and girls who have been my guests in previous years have been waiting for the opening of the season, and now that school's over, the time for fun is here. We know that lots of boys and girls don't have an awfully gay time during the summer, even though it is vacation time. So Tribune Charities, Inc., appointed me to see to it that you are taken care of. We schedule a party every single week during July and August and any boy or girl is eligible to try for an invitation to any one of them. We've made some wonderful plans this year, so you'd better keep an eye on this column from now on.

Our first party is to be on July 6, and it's one I know you'll love. Fifty boys and fifty girls will have an opportunity to see the new movie every one's talking about, "Good-by, Mr. Chips," which is playing at the Apollo theater.

Since I can't take all the boys and girls who would like such a treat, I'll try to select the youngsters to whom such a party would mean the most. If you don't care much for movies—and I've heard of few boys and girls who don't—or if you'd rather go swimming, you probably wouldn't want terribly to come. But if you'd rather see this movie than do anything else you can think of, you're just the kind of youngster I want as my guest. All you have to do is write me a letter that will convince me that you'll have a swell time, you see!

Winning an invitation to any party isn't a bit hard, but there are just a few easy rules you must remember. Simply tell me why you'd enjoy this party and remember to tell me your name, address, and your age. You must write your own letter, and mail it so that it will reach me by next Thursday, June 29. Please don't ask for invitations for your friends or brothers or sisters. Let them write, too, if they want to come. Letters written by parents will not be accepted.

Next Thursday morning I'll read all your letters and the fifty boys and fifty girls who write the best ones will be selected as my guests. The names of the winners will be printed in next SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE.

I'll tell you more about our party tomorrow, but you don't need to wait for that to get busy on your letter. The address is Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

So they say.

This picture is dedicated to the men who give loyal, unselfish service in English colonies and protectorates.

The idea is a fine one. The story is an indifferent one. Packs some punches, but they're weakened by a lot of melodramatic blah.

Service to the crown is the Randolph family's religion.

As the action opens Clive, the elder brother, and his wife, who is about to have a baby, are about to return to England from Africa, where Clive has been virtually promised a high office at home. He finds his younger brother, John, running berserker. He will NOT, he says, enter the service.

He does, however, persuaded by his grandfather, who convinces him that it's the only thing for a Randolph to do if a Randolph would "belong."

Well, by this time you have learned that, over in Africa, a mysterious so-called scientist, Dr. Zurof, is, under careful cloaking, running a radio broadcast that's throwing the world into turmoil. His radio station can't be located. . . . Clive is sent back, ostensibly to break brother in to take over his job, but in reality to ferret out the location of the trouble maker. . . . Back with him goes Spouse Helen, who, like Mrs. Micawber, will not be separated from her lord and master, though she loathes Africa.

And now the sort of blood and thunder I intimated before gets under way. Makes you sorry—and a bit ashamed for the producers.

BUT—the acting's all aces. And you may go for "The Sun Never Sets" in a big way. [I never know WHAT you'll do!]

See you tomorrow.

Good-bye To Vienna

By Olga L. Rosmanith

(Copyright: 1939: By News Syndicate Company, Inc.)

SYNOPSIS.

An American girl and her Viennese sweetheart, Franz Gruenwald, in a café in Vienna, hear a radio announcement of Hitler's entry into Austria. The girl, Marian, has been staying in Franz's home, studying voice. Franz fears for his foster father, Prof. Josef von Plasy, author of a recent anti-Nazi book. He refuses to flee the country and leave his wife, Gisela, and son Johann, who has the mind of a child. Leopoldine, a pro-Nazi woman surgeon, in love with Franz, warns him to send the American girl home. Her brother, Karl, is a Storm Trooper. Von Plasy is taken off to jail to die from shock. In order to take Gisela's money out of the country to deliver to her friend, Emil Wiedermann, in Riga, Marian invests it in rare stamps. Herr Speyer, the stamp merchant, guesses her purpose, but is sympathetic and asks her to deliver a picture to a friend of his in Riga, a Mme. Lonska. Marian leaves without telling Franz her purpose.

INSTALMENT XIII.

A HOPELESS PLIGHT.

Franz had spared Marian his personal worry. The laboratory was closed temporarily for reorganization of the firm under a Nazi commissioner, but it was closed permanently to him. His job was considered a plum by hundreds of young men graduated in science, and in addition to his connection with the degraded professor, he was not a member of the Nazi party. So he was definitly and irrevocably out.

Nor was that the complete measure of his misery. The day after Marian left the Storm Troopers came back and made a systematic search of the Reichsratstrasse apartment, tearing it apart. In places where the wallpaper looked rough, or as if it had been repaired or tampered with, they had actually torn it from the walls.

Gisela was even now occupied with restoring what order she could to the little home which had been left an obscene sight with mattresses, pillows, and cushions, cut open, rugs tossed aside, floorboards taken up, even the bindings torn ruthlessly from costly technical books. On the grounds that the professor owed the Nazi government a heavy punitive fine for his "treason" to its ideology they had taken everything of cashable value, the housekeeping money from the bureau drawer, the old seldom used family silver, the professor's watch, pearl studs, and gold cuff links, all Gisela's modest jewelry.

They had even questioned Gisela closely about Marian's activities and personal property. Made a note of her new address and were most annoyed to find her gone.

Franz was amazed at Gisela's calmness under the ordeal of the brutal search. She had either some secret source of strength or she was so crushed by the loss of her husband that she did not care what any one chose to do to her any more.

Johann was useless, except for his blithe, tireless asssistance in the housework. Franz had no job and his savings had lately been used to buy his motorcycle. The professor's modest bank account had been confiscated. Gisela had been robbed of all her money. They had a few things for sale, but it was a macabre joke to count on such a possibility. With the city in a state of panic, with no one knowing what was really going on underground, and no one able to guess what was going to happen next, no one was buying anything for which there did not exist the sheerest personal necessity. To attempt to sell the motorcycle was also dangerous. It would draw attention to it.

The girl was being beaten because she was an Aryan.

"Gisela," said Franz as he watched her skillfully patching up the torn places on the walls, "you're a brave, brave woman."

She turned to him with a look on her face as if she meant to tell him something, and then thought better of it.

"Worse things are happening," she said quietly. "At least, I know that Josef's safe. I thank God for that, because this calamity had already brought his life to an end. Anything else would be living death for him."

He said somberly, "I agree with that."

He stood watching her a little longer, his mind fretted with the utterly unfamiliar problem of what they were going to do in the immediate future for food. It was a different situation from physical danger in which a man could die decently using his fists. It baffled him. He felt as if he were somehow suspended in space with the ground cut from under him. Their hard won, apparently unassailable, security had vanished in a night. He could not speak of it to her. He picked up his hat and went out of the house.

It was early April now, fitful, cool, gusty, and cloudy. Nevertheless spring was a reality. He sat on a bench under the budding chestnuts and took out a notebook. Wrote down the names and addresses of every friend of his own and the professor's who would be likely to be able to use him in any possible way of employment. Then he would call on them systematically without wasting time crossing and recrossing his tracks through the city.

He made nine calls, but was not successful. Some were genuine in their inability to employ him; their own situation was too precarious. But others he saw were afraid to help. He was tainted by the professor's fate. Nevertheless, the brisk, vigorous attempt to solve his problem instead of brooding about it had raised his spirits. He would serve behind a counter, if necessary, to take care of his little family now. A friend of the professor's owned four or five delicatessen stores. People were still buying food. He jumped on a street car in front of the opera house and went down the busy middle class shopping district, the Mariahilferstrasse.

Every coat lapel but his own in the street car twinkled with little white metal swastikas. He saw hostile eyes move automatically to the place where his should be and then stared at him. He got off the tram at his stopping place, telling himself he would never wear one.

A crowd jostled him on the pavement and a girl's voice cried out in agony. He pushed his way through the rough youths and struggling women. They were twisting the girl's arms and tearing her clothes off. His fists flew. Brown shirts and black uniforms arrived in another two minutes. The girl was being beaten because she was an Aryan and had just emerged from a Jewish store. The Storm Troopers dispersed the crowd, but they did not like Franz's scornful attitude. They took him away for questioning.

Franz cursed himself as he sat waiting to be taken to see some official bully in a bare, smoke filled office. He had betrayed Gisela and Johann, left them to their fate, without what little help he could give them. Nobody single handed could buck this appalling machine. Considering how much now depended on him, he was a coward even to try it. A coward because it took more moral courage to pretend he could be one of them.

He had himself well in hand when the officer came in, and his bitter excuses ready. It was a misunderstanding, he explained without resentment. He had no idea what the row was about when he went to the girl's rescue. His name meant nothing to the big blond German and Franz did not enlighten him. "I see. What are your politics?"

"I'm a scientist. Working apart from the world in a manner of speaking. Up till now I've had no politics."

"Any member of the party who can speak for you?"

A picture of Leopoldine's brother in his smart new uniform flashed into Franz's mind. The words stuck in his throat, but he must get out—he must get out. God knew what would happen to Johann and Gisela.

"The Steinwegs are friends of mine. Karl Steinweg is a Sturmmann."

"What district?"

Franz could not answer that. He gave the telephone number of the house in Turkenschantz Park. The result was satisfactory. The Obersturmfuehrer gave the troopers orders to release him. "Shut your eyes to what you don't like," he said with a mouth that reminded Franz of a rat trap. "That is, if you want to keep out of trouble."

The shops were closing and the lights already twinkling in the early dark. He hurried back to the Mariahilferstrasse to carry out his interrupted project. There was no place for him, however, and a sad little parley took place in the bookkeeper's office at the back of the shop. "I'm on the blacklist," Herr Dortler explained. "My business is thriving, and I commit the crime of employing several Jews. They are relatives, in fact. You see, my wife is Jewish."

"But you will have to dismiss them," said Franz desperately, ashamed of the necessity for such unworthy hope.

"They will be dismissed, certainly, but, alas, I will not have the replacing of them. I will have no say in the matter. Already a Nazi commissioner has taken away my books. It is a well run business. It shows a profit. It carries my wife's name. They will take it away. There is no possible hope for me."

GASOLINE ALLEY—THAT'S NEWS

'No' Habit in Small Child Isn't Serious

GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"My little boy of 2 has developed the funniest little trick—and I won't say it isn't annoying. I tell him to do something that ordinarily he would do without question, but instead of doing it he will promptly say, "No." Then, in a few minutes, sometimes even if I don't repeat my request, he obeys me.

"Do many children do this? I don't want him to get to be one of those contrary children."

If ever there was something that was distinctly only a phase, and almost a universal one, it is this "No" habit of the small child. Some psychologists have recently offered a novel explanation of it by saying that the child means to agree, means to say yes, but doesn't know that no is a negative. That, however, is just a surmise and a little too imaginative to suit me. The explanation is to me simpler and more logical.

What is obvious to most of us who know small children is that their "No" does not often mean what it seems to mean. Suppose you say, "Come and wash your hands, Betsy," and Betsy answers immediately, just as if you'd pushed a button, "No," and then, to your astonishment, Betsy comes.

What does that mean? It probably means that Betsy's first impulse is to object to leaving her play, but that her second is to obey. If she were older she'd probably say, "O, dear, do I have to? Well, all right, I will."

Instead she says, "No"; but, following her second impulse, amicably falls in with the uninteresting idea of a wash.

But sometimes your little Betsy [or Billy, or Tim] says "No" and sticks to it, especially when you try to rush her into some new activity.

That "No" may mean a number of things. It may mean, first, that she's tired or hungry, and so nothing appeals to her for that reason. Or it may mean that she's right in the midst of some play fascinating to her and doesn't want to leave it.

If she were more skilful with words, what she'd probably say would be, "I'll be through here in a few minutes, mother, and then I'll come along and get washed for supper." But she's not adept at expressing herself.

Don't take the ready "No" of your small boy or girl too seriously. Give him time to switch his interest. Sometimes ignore the "No." Sometimes explain.

Sometimes make the next thing that's coming sound pleasant or as if it would be fun.

But don't make an issue of the babyish "No"—and don't take it seriously.

Real stubbornness is discussed in a booklet "Sidelights on Stubbornness." To obtain it send a large, self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Most ices and sherbets are better frozen in the old-fashioned hand freezer or the new-fashioned electric one. To be made successfully in the refrigerator tray a stabilizing agent is needed. And many stabilizers take the dessert from the ice and sherbet class, making it into ice cream.

Egg whites and gelatin are two good stabilizers for refrigerator made ices and sherbets. Even when one of them is used it is necessary to stir at the dessert at least once during the freezing process.

Here are two recipes for raspberry ice, one to be made in the freezer, the other for refrigerator freezing.

Raspberry Ice

[Freezer made: 1½ quarts]
2 cups water
1½ cups sugar
2 cups crushed raspberries
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Boil sugar and water for 5 minutes. Pour over raspberries and cool. Rub mixture through sieve to remove seeds. Add lemon juice and freeze, using 6 parts ice to 1 part salt in freezer. Turn crank slowly for the first few minutes, then rapidly until the ice thickens. Remove dasher when ice is frozen, scraping it off carefully. Cover can with wax paper, place cover, and cork the opening. Drain off melted ice and replace with more ice and salt mixture in the proportions of 4 to 1. Cover freezer with rug or newspapers and let stand several hours before serving the ice.

Raspberry Ice

[Refrigerator: Serves eight]
1 pint raspberries
¾ cup sugar
½ cup water
2 tablespoons orange juice
2 egg whites
Few grains salt

Add sugar to berries and crush. Heat slowly and cook 5 minutes. Add water. Strain, cool, and add orange juice. Pour into freezing tray and freeze until almost firm. Remove to chilled bowl and whip until light. Add stiffly beaten egg whites to which salt has been added. Fold the two mixtures together well and return quickly to the tray to finish freezing.

Mint Ice

[Refrigerator: Serves six]
4 cups water
2 cups sugar
Juice of 2 lemons
Few drops green coloring
¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg whites

Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes. Cool, add lemon juice, a few drops of mint flavoring, and coloring to tint a pale green. Freeze until firm at coldest temperature. Scrape from pan into chilled bowl and beat until light. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites to which salt has been added. Freeze until firm.

Orange Ice.

[Freezer or refrigerator: Serves eight]
2 cups sugar
4 cups water
2 cups orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
Grated rind of 2 oranges

Boil sugar and water for 20 minutes. Cool and add remaining ingredients. If the refrigerator tray is used beat twice during freezing.

The berries are here and if you would have gooseberry, strawberry, raspberry, and other berry jams and jellies it's time to get out the preserving kettle. For recipes see "Mary Meade's Best Jams and Jellies," on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower lobby. Price 20 cents; by postpaid mail, 23 cents. The booklet contains recipes for jellies, jams, butters, preserves, conserves, and marmalades of many fruits.

June 26, 1939.

It may seem strange to be finishing up some things on the first of the week, but this just happens to be a good day for culminating matters. Those born on the 26th will find that they can accomplish more on those days which add up to an 8. They have to be more careful than most people to avoid difficulties through power which they wield or the power of those in authority.

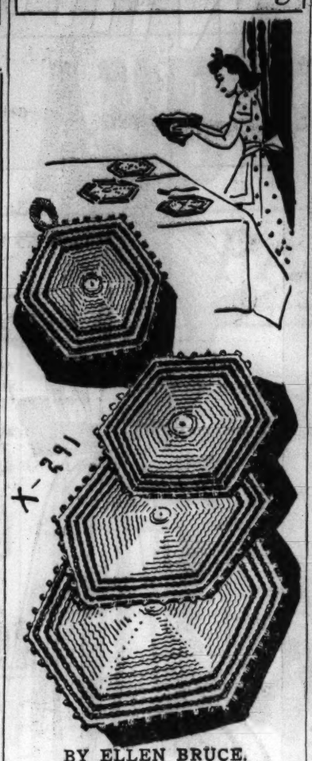
Hexagonal Plate Mats Ideal for Informal Dining



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Hexagonal pot holders and hot plate mats have lent themselves to the Mexican theme with the use of stripes the pot holder is crocheted of carpet warp, string, or cotton, with green, yellow, and blue alternating stripes against a white or natural colored ground. A heavy eight ply cotton cord, or carpet warp in two strands, creates unusual hot plate mats for informal dining.

Instructions in crocheting the hexagon hot plate mats and pot holders, No. X-291, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I would appreciate your comments on the inclosed hand. South felt very much aggrieved at his partner's bidding, feeling that the contract should never have gone to a slam. Incidentally, he went down two on the hand.

"South, dealer.

"Both sides vulnerable.

"The actual bidding was:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 spades	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass
4 spades	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

"The opening lead was a small club and, as I have said, the final result was a two trick penalty.

"L. M., New York."

This is another one of those strange controversies that arise over contracts that have nothing wrong with them. Not that the bidding was right—far from it! But the partners should have congratulated themselves that they managed to fall into a contract that had an excellent chance for success and which, indeed, certainly should have been fulfilled after the low club opening from West. My correspondent failed to describe what took place in the play, but something very peculiar must have happened. However, let us review the bidding and leave the play until later.

North's no trump was, of course, horrible. His distribution was not even remotely suitable for no trump since it contained a singleton heart and, moreover, his five-plus honor tricks were slightly over the limit of what a no trump call should contain.

The correct bidding was:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Now, as to the play: on a small club opening by West declarer should duck in dummy as the best safety measure. Of course, if the lead were a singleton, an immediate ruff might develop, but this was not at all likely and the advantage of letting the lead come up to the jack was infinitely greater than the risk of a second round ruff. With the club jack actually holding the first trick, declarer would have a very easy time of it. The best play at the second trick would be to take the diamond finesse. Although it would lose, declarer now would be in a position to manipulate the hand in any of several ways. East's best return probably would be a low heart and dummy would win. Now the spade king could be cashed and a low spade to the jack would permit declarer to ruff a heart with dummy's last spade. One high diamond would then be cashed and declarer would ruff the low diamond to reenter his own hand and draw the trumps. Two more club tricks and one diamond would account for the twelve necessary tricks.

Surely, partners can find better things to argue about than contracts as good as this one.

MISS' SUN BACK FROCK.

Schoolgirls and co-eds on vacation and business women on their annual furloughs from office routine need special frocks for their summertime activities. It may be a dress for active or spectator sports occasions. It may even be a dance frock for summer evenings. Whatever the case, incredibly enough, this pattern provides for it. The sketch illustrates how versatile the design is.

At the left, a version for active sports, with sun back, heart shaped neckline, heart shaped pockets, and clever use of buttons. A feminine sash is crushed around the waistline. No sleeves mar the comfort of this dress for sports women. All types of sturdy washable materials may be used, with plain colors leading, splashed over with gay sashes and buttons.

Upper right, the same pattern serves for a dance frock. Cottons make up exquisitely, and the more ruffles you place on this model the better. It's a demure and girlish style, and romantic. Even the pockets, unusual on a dance frock, are beruffled.

The dress has a jacket of its own, sketched at lower right. It converts the sun back model into a proper costume for the street, and also protects shoulders that have been toasted enough.

Style No. 2891 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material for the sun back dress, 1½ yards for the bolero, and 3¾ yards of 39 inch material for the evening dress.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

The colorful summer edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 15 cents the copy. 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, NEW YORK CITY.

Not Beautiful? Give Best Care to Skin, Hair, Teeth, Posture

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

This is addressed to you young women who write and say: "I am not good looking, but—"

You say "but you are a decent girl," "but the girls like you," "but the boys never ask you for a date."

Let's start with your opening remark: "I am not good looking." Why aren't you good looking? There is no set type of beauty that you have to pattern after, unless you yourself appoint an impossible ideal. You don't need to compare yourself with a movie star, you know, for they have breaks behind that glamor that you can't possibly hope to achieve. But, because you haven't their lives to lead, you don't need their kind of glamor.

You should be good looking, every one of you young women, and if you are not it is because you don't take enough care of yourself. All you need, with your youth, is clean skin and shining hair and teeth, neat nails, a good smart posture, and a figure that is not overweight. Not one of these things is out of your attainment—if you care enough about yourself. And you must care, really, or the boys will not be interested. The kind of features you have doesn't matter a particle. You may have a mouth that wouldn't meet artistic measurements, but if it is a merry one with a merry smile and quip on it always, you'll more than do. And, of course, if you can't buy nice clothes even on a minimum budget today, you're just not a smart shopper.

Don't, we beg of you, if you aim to be popular, adopt that silly, smug attitude about being decent, therefore superior. You're not a bit superior on that account, for there are thousands upon thousands of decent girls who are as popular as can be. So, as a rival quality, decency won't distinguish you. It's expected of you, in fact.

If the boys don't "date you" there must be something wrong with your manner. Maybe you're not natural with them, with the sort of ease that makes them feel comfortable. Better get acquainted with the technique of handling boys so they will like you.

After a wedding trip in the east the couple will be at home in Chicago.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Gillet to Robert Frank Schneider, son of Oscar P. Schneider, took place on June 17. The former Miss Gillet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gillet of 7219 Paxton avenue, attended Bradley Polytechnic institute. Mr. Schneider attended the University of Chicago. After a wedding trip in the east the couple will be at home at 7443 Paxton avenue.

Miss Edith Elizabeth Keeler became the bride of Owen Rondthaler Rice of Flossmoor Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keeler of 9654 Longwood drive. The bride is a graduate of Smith college and has been teaching recently in private schools near New York City. Mr. Rice is a graduate of Lehigh university and is engaged in business in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Hood of Chicago announce the marriage on June 14 of their daughter, Martha Margaret, to Jackson Baker Roynon. The young couple will be at home at 807 North Wabash avenue after July 15.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

For the end of the day fatigue that seems to have you absolutely licked we recommend a foot treatment. It's really better than a cocktail and you can give yourself one in just about the time it would take to mix and consume something cold.

All you need for this little foot treatment is a pair of preparations that come conveniently boxed together. One is a massage cream, rich and soothing and cool against the skin. The very touch of it against the aching feet is a relief.

You just apply this cream sparingly and massage upward, in smooth, rhythmic strokes, gently across the foot and rather firmly at the ankle. Use some on the soles of your feet, too. It will feel wonderfully cool and is something of a help in keeping that skin comfortably soft.

When this is done you use foot lotion. This is green, pleasant smelling, and immensely bracing. The lotion removes the last remains of the rather rich cream—which is medicated—and is a finishing touch of comfort and grooming that shouldn't be omitted.

There's nothing elegant about the business of easing your feet. But there's no point in pretending that your feet don't need easing if they actually do. And most of us could stand it. When your feet are aching you're completely miserable. Your smile freezes on your face and your step is about as light as an elephant's.

Shoes, of course, are important. We'll never know how some women manage to navigate in the shoes they choose to wear, and we agree with a foot specialist we talked to recently that chiropody, as a profession, ought to be more and more profitable. The funny shoes, he said, were wonderful for the foot doctor's business.

But, in hot weather, sane shoes or not, a cooling, soothing foot treatment helps any disposition.

Grooming Is the Basis of Hand Beauty and Gracefulness

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Speaking of hands and hand beauty, as many of us are doing today, Miriam Hopkins calls attention to the fact that times have changed greatly in this connection. In former days it was only the gentry who were allowed the time, money, and pride for exquisite hands, whereas today, if every housewife, factory, and office worker hasn't hands she's not agraid to show, it's her own fault.

Miriam Hopkins.

Miss Hopkins not only has hands that are lovely of contour but also of excellent grooming. More important, however, is the gesture of grace she makes of every movement with them.

"Beautifully poised hands," some one calls them. A nice expression to apply to hands, because it immediately suggests control of being as well as of hands.

In order to feel at perfect ease with your hands, Miss Hopkins says, keeping them always well groomed is a first aid measure. This implies, naturally, a regular weekly manicure and your own nightly care; also, pushing the cuticle back each time the hands are washed. The removal of old polish, and fresh application before the nails begin to look as if some spotted disease had affected them, is another aid to hand poise.

One can't feel sure of herself with that finger nail blight facing one accusingly. And one can achieve much hand beauty by that habit of using a good hand lotion after each washing around home. Away from home one may have to forgo this hand beautifying habit which takes only a minute.

The whole trick of changing awkward, stiff hands into implements of grace and poise, says our authority, is to recognize that the stiff and tense hand must create ungraceful gestures. Therefore, relax them with a shake at the wrist, or "think" the wrist loose and free if done under others' eyes. Anyway, loosen the wrists before the hand tensions are put into motion.

Graceful hands—and how to acquire them—are discussed in the booklet, "Handmade Hand Beauty," by Antoinette Donnelly, Tribune beauty editor. Get a copy. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. By postpaid mail, 7 cents.

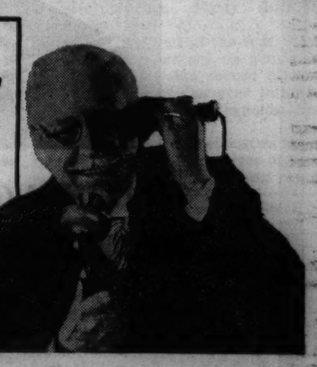
"WHAT! YOU FOUND THE PLANS ALREADY!"


"I hoped for results from the want ad I phoned to the Tribune last night, but I didn't expect such quick action!"

Whenever you lose anything of value be sure to telephone a Lost and Found want ad to the Chicago Tribune. Thousands of dollars' worth of property is restored each year to owners who advertise in the Lost and Found column of the Tribune.

Regardless of what you may have lost, or where in Chicago or suburbs you may have lost it, there is a good chance that a Tribune reader will find it.

As an extra service to Tribune Lost and Found advertisers, all such ads are kept for three months after publication in a special register open to the public at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 S. Dearborn St., and in Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan Ave.

Every day of the week the Tribune is read by more than 725,000 families right in metropolitan Chicago. This is practically as many as read any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

Further, the Tribune is Chicago's big want ad marketplace, carrying far more want advertising and, as a result, attracting far more want ad readers than any other Chicago newspaper.

Call SUPERIOR 0100—WANT AD-VISER and ask for Miss Miller if you wish to recover lost property. Miss Miller will help you word your want ad. If your name is in the phone book you may charge your Tribune want ad.

CUBS AND PASSEAU BEAT PHILS, HIGBE, 4 TO 3

ARLINGTON PARK TO OPEN 30 DAY MEETING TODAY

$3,500 FEATURE RACE ATTRACTS STRONG FIELD

Classic Stakes Will Climax Season.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Arlington park opens today with a program headed by the $3,500 Inaugural handicap, the first of eight stake races which will be run during the thirty day meeting. With its stalls filled to capacity with high grade horses, its stands and stables brightened up in two-tone green and vivid red, its landscaping freshened and its seating arrangement expanded, the big racing plant is ready for a brilliant season, which will be climaxed by the $30,000 Classic stakes.

The overnight entries for the Inaugural handicap total twenty-three, indicating that an exceptionally large field may go to the post in this seven furlong dash. The Fighter, owned by W. F. Morgan of Texas, was assigned top weight of 116 pounds, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Higher Cloud being next with 115. Other good ones in the field include Winston Guest's Drudgery, John Marsch's Lightspur, Warren Wright's Easy Mon, C. H. Cleary's Flying Lil, Woolford farm's Joe Schenck, and the Milky Way farm's Tiger.

You Wouldn't Know the Place.

During the off season the management has spent $140,000 in the improvement and redecoration of the plant. Five hundred seats have been added in the enclosure and a cocktail lounge with 100 tables has been set up on the upper clubhouse terrace.

Track Superintendent Harold Lamb reports that approximately 1,200 horses are on hand, assuring large fields for all races. Many of the most powerful stables of the east and west already are represented and other star performers will be shipped in for the big stakes.

More than $350,000 in prize money will be distributed during the meeting, with a daily minimum of $8,000. Every day there will be at least one $1,500 event or two at $1,200.

And It's Ladies' Day.

Ladies will be admitted today with no charge except the federal tax. The North Western railroad will operate special trains direct to the track from 12:45 to 1:25 p. m. Post time for the first race is 2:15.

There is a possibility that the management will hold an exhibition against time during the meeting with some outstanding runner attempting to break the world's record for a mile which was set by Equipoise on June 30, 1932, when he went the distance in 1:34 2-5 over the Arlington course. William Woodward's Johnstown, winner of the Kentucky Derby, Belmont, Withers, and Dwyer stakes, has been mentioned as the possible recipient of an invitation to make this attempt. Johnstown has been nominated for the Classic, which is to be run on July 22, and Woodward has signified his intention of sending his great speed horse out to fill the engagement.

Star Jockeys on Hand.

A colony of capable and spectacular riders has gathered for the Arlington meeting. Johnny Oros, present leader in the national standing; Johnny Longden, 1938 leader; Charley Kurtsinger, Al Robertson, Warren Yarberry, and Carroll Bierman are on the roster. Other brilliant riders will come out to ride for their contract employers in the important stakes. This group probably will include George Seabo, Jimmy Stout, Wayne Wright, Ray Workman, and Eddie Arcaro.

Several nominees for the Classic will run in today's Oak Park purse, a race of a mile for 3 year olds. Another supporting feature will be the Barrington purse, a five and a half furlong race that has attracted a field of good 2 year olds.

First Two Races in Double.

Mort Shaw, director of the mutuels, has announced that the daily double will be based on the first and second races, the windows closing at 2:05 p. m. for this feature.

Maj. L. A. Beard is in charge of the meeting as director of racing. Robert S. Shelley is racing secretary. Among the other officials are Otto W. Lehman, president, and Charles A. McCulloch, chairman of the board.

EDDIE COLLINS HINTS RED SOX WON'T GET SON

Boston, Mass., June 25.—(AP)—A hint that Eddie Collins Jr., Yale baseball captain, had rejected a Boston offer and accepted another American league club's bid was given today by his father, the Red Sox general manager. Collins Sr. said his son will enter professional baseball within a week. He said he was not at liberty to name the club, but admitted it was in the American league.

Collins' reticence led to surmises that Eddie Jr. had decided to follow in his father's footsteps and cast his lot with Connie Mack and the Philadelphia Athletics, the club his father joined on graduation from Columbia.

GALENTO IS AS FIT AS HE CAN BE TO BOX LOUIS

Tony Ends Ring Drill for Title Bout Wednesday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Summit, N. J., June 25.—This is the day to write that Tony Galento is ready for his fight Wednesday night with Joe Louis. This sentence might have been written at any time last week, but today, after boxing five rounds with his two faithful campmates, Abe Feldman and Mickey McAvoy, Galento officially completed his preparations.

For five weeks, in Asbury Park and later at Madame Bey's hillside camp, Tony, as ardent an individualist as ever bounced a belligerent patron from in front of a bar, has had his daily affairs compressed into the pattern prescribed for pugilists in training. And, as a result, the rotund little man has melted himself to a mere 235 pounds; he has received approval of Commissioner Bill Brown, to whom physical training is a fetish, and sufficient interest has been aroused to make it probable the championship battle will gross $300,000.

The Cash Is the Thing.

Tony may be pleased to have lost some of the beery blubber which threatened to equalize his circumference and height, but the $300,000 has been the magnet that has kept Two Ton Tony striding the narrow, and for him, unpleasant path of clean living.

"I know just how to talk to Galento before he leaves his dressing room in Yankee stadium," Manager Joe Jacobs said today in rebuttal to insinuations that Tony's courage might be suspected in those final minutes. "When I get through painting a picture of the wealth the heavyweight title will bring, Tony will tear Louis apart."

It is our conclusion, after seeing Feldman outpoint Galento this afternoon, that Jacobs' dressing room speech, if successful, will give him a place in history alongside Demosthenes. In any event, as it has been pointed out many times, Louis won't hurt Joe Jacobs, and probably Galento will find out he should have "stood in bed."

Abe Puts on a Show.

Feldman gave more than 2,000 spectators here this afternoon a far better show for 55 cents than several thousand saw for $16.50 in Miami last winter when the Schenectady heavyweight faced Galento and was counted out in the third round. Absence of managerial pressure may have been the reason for Feldman's brilliance today.

Tony's father and mother and his wife, Mary, were in the front row. The spotlight of reflected notoriety left them confused and self-conscious. They did not visibly enjoy Tony's monologue which had his Jersey friends in an uproar.

"I'm a credit to the state," Tony ad libbed. "Look at all the taxes I'm bringing in."

Tony's Easy to Hit.

Feldman outpointed Galento, three blows to one. Tony never was an easier target and, in addition, he missed with his flailing left hook as often as he landed. Tony thoroughly enjoyed the mêlée. At the end Feldman was quite ready to climb out of the ring.

That ancient mariner, Mickey McAvoy, whose four year hitch in the navy ended twenty years ago, was finalist on Galento's training program. McAvoy was hammered unmercifully in the stomach. Mickey clutched and held and once chinned himself on Tony's outstretched left arm, was swung off his feet and dropped on the seat of his tights in the corner.

He will shadow box and punch the bag tomorrow and Tuesday. Tony will continue road work for three days. He plans a short jaunt Wednesday morning before he motors to New York to weigh in. This never has been done by any fighter.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—What do you suppose Tony Galento is thinking about as the night of his execution nears? . . . How long it will last? . . . Not on your life. . . . He's concerned about the All-American football team that will face the New York Giants at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 30. . . . From his camp at Summit, N. J., where he is tapering off, as the boys like to call it, for his bout with Joe Louis Wednesday night, Tony today forwarded his idea of the lineup he wants to see take the field against the champions of the National Professional Football league. . . . And who do you suppose is the full back? . . . Why Tony Galento, of course. . . . Explaining the reasons for his selections, he stated: "I would have picked all Italians, but so many of these guys have changed their names I can't tell who is which. There ain't eleven guys on my team from Jersey or they would lick the daylights out of the Giants. So I picked all guys whose names begin with the letter G. There ain't no full backs with the G, so I'm the full back. Think Tony can't bust them Giants? What a break, you don't have to wear boxing gloves!" . . .

Tony Galento.

Marshall Goldberg.

His lineup follows: Ends, Gedeon, Michigan, and Going, Clemson; tackles, Gatte, Louisiana State, and George, Southern California; guards, Gross, Bradley Tech, and Gales, Ohio State; center, Gormley, Louisiana State; quarter back, Gavre, Wisconsin; half backs, Goldberg, Pittsburgh, and Graham, Indiana; full back, Galento.

There's at least one department of the records in which Galento compares favorably with Louis. . . . He comes up to the title match with a string of eleven straight victories. . . . He has not been defeated since Arturo Godoy of Chile won a six round decision from him at Comiskey park, June 22, 1937, the night Louis wrested the championship from Jimmy Braddock. . . . Louis has won twelve in a row, seven of which have been in defense of his title. . . . During his ten years of ring warfare Galento has won seventy-seven bouts, fifty by knockouts; lost twenty-two, including two knockouts, and has had five draws. . . . Louis has scored forty victories in forty-one bouts and thirty-four of his opponents failed to finish the match. . . . His record shows thirty-four knockouts. . . . His lone defeat was a twelve round knockout at the hands of Max Schmeling, whom he later stopped in two minutes and three seconds.

The Prom.

When youth prepares for his first big date,
Though trying hard to be sedate,
His excitement is manifest
To the family for jest.

"Did you wash your neck and ears?"
Bigger brother or sister jeers;
"Is she a blonde or a brunette?
O' your manners do not forget!"

All this he takes with a smile
As he tries to dress in style;
With vaseline he slicks his hair
While mother knots his tie with care.

In father's big car he soon departs
To call for the lady of his heart
Who awaits him in eager anticipation
To hie away to the celebration.

At first he feels ill at ease.
He keeps repeating: "Excuse me, please."
But as the joyful hours proceed
His assurance is marked, indeed.

When the parting moment draws nigh,
A goodnight kiss she'll not deny,
For in these hours that have flown,
O, golly, how he's grown!

—Sheilagh.

SOLDIERS' FIELD AUTO TITLE GOES TO HOUSEHOLDER

20,000 See Californian Win Final Feature.

Ronnie Householder of Van Nuys, Cal., who first appeared in Chicago four years ago, roared over the quarter mile board track in Soldiers' field last night at an average speed of seventy-three miles per hour to win the 100 lap closing feature of the charity midget automobile racing meet before 20,000.

Duke Nalon, veteran Chicago driver, finished second, and Sam Hanks, Alhambra, Cal., was third. Perry Grimm, Los Angeles, took fourth place and another Californian, Duane Carter of Fresno, was fifth.

Householder earned $1,250 for his victory and $200 in lap awards. Nalon took $800 for second place and $100 lap awards; Hanks, $700; Grimm, $400; Carter, $325.

80,000 See the Meet.

The attendance last night boosted the total for the five nights of racing to 80,000. Twenty-five thousand watched the opening events last Sunday. Proceeds will be turned over to the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, Chicago unit.

Householder, trailing Mel Hansen of Los Angeles for the first forty-five laps, went into the lead when Hansen spun at the south turn and slid back to the infield. Hansen resumed racing, but failed to approach the leaders.

Jimmy Snyder, the Chicagoan who finished second in the Indianapolis 500 mile race on Decoration day, was among the pace setters until the twenty-fifth lap, when he was clowed down by a faulty motor. Emil Andres, another Chicagoan, was forced to withdraw after the first lap.

Ronnie Plays Safe.

Shortly after taking the lead Householder was closely pressed by Hanks. However, Householder increased his advantage at the fifty-fifth lap and then drove cautiously. At the eighty-seventh lap the caution flag was waved and rosin was spread over the slippery south turn as the drivers held their positions. Summaries:

SEAMAN, BRITISH DRIVER, KILLED IN BELGIAN RACE

SPA, Belgium, June 25.—(AP)—John Richard Beattie Seaman, one of Great Britain's leading automobile road race drivers, died in a hospital today after his car crashed in flames when he was leading the Belgian grand prix.

Seaman, who was 26, and the late Sir Henry Segrave, one time holder of the land speed record, were the only British drivers ever to have won the International grand prix.

Last December he married Ericha Eldriede Popp, 19 year old daughter of a German motor magnate.

INDIANA RACER DIES.

One Down and One to Go in Two Aces in 24 Hours Bet

One down and one to go.

That was the status at an early hour this morning as the newest recruit to the newest of golf marathons, one Cyril Wagner, a Chicago driving range proprietor, leveled shot after shot at the seventeenth green of the Elmgate Golf club in Glenview in his pursuit of two hole in ones within a twenty-four hour period.

Cyril Wagner.

No. 1 flopped into the cup at 12:23 a. m. today, and now all Cyril has to do is to coax another one into the opening and he can drive away from the course in a brand new automobile. However, under terms of a bet, Wagner must have No. 2 holed out by 8:15 o'clock this evening—or hand over $325.

He Calls the Turn.

Wagner, a curly haired, nervous little chap of 32, had fired 804 shots at the cup in vain when he addressed No. 805 just after midnight. He murmured, "This is it," but the sparse gallery, which earlier had numbered 250 spectators, paid little heed to the remark, for he had been saying that before each of the other 804.

But 805 happened to be "it." Using a six iron Wagner lifted a high shot which struck two feet in front of the cup, bounced once, and rolled in for the first hole in one he had shot in twenty years of playing the game.

At 5:30 o'clock this morning he had shot 1,530 times as he strove for No. 2. On the 1,328th shot he missed the hole by only 3 inches.

It seems that Wagner, a former professional at the Tam O' Shanter Country club, and one of the members of that club, K. K. Kenderdine, fell to talking about the failure of Harry Gonder, Michigan City, Ind., pro, to get down in one stroke in 16 hours and 40 minutes of shooting. Wagner said he would make not one hole in one, but two, and within a 24 hour period.

So, at 8:15 last night, Wagner, who has a hole in one psychology all his own, dropped a ball on a mat on the 17th tee at Elmgate and commenced leveling at the cup 131 yards away.

He's Got It Doped Out.

Cyril figures it this way:

"I know I can hit the green with nine of ten shots. From there on I agree that it's a matter of luck, and I'm just enough of a believer in my luck to feel that a couple of those babies are going to scamper right up to that cup and plop in. Why," murmurred Mr. Wagner, with a faraway look, "four or five of 'em might drop during a 24 hour stretch."

Not even Gonder's painful failure, in which the Indiana pro gave up after 1,817 shots with blistered hands and aching legs, or the knowledge that, according to a hole in one contest conducted in the east, the chances are 5,913 to 1, could discourage the energetic Mr. Wagner.

As to the blisters, he doesn't fear them. He started out on his adventure with his hands sheathed in a pair of suede gloves, and says that they eliminate this possibility of failure. The figures he also dismisses with a shrug, and refers you to his hole in one physcology again.

Parker, Mulloy Meet for Clay Court Crown

Frank Parker of Pasadena, Cal., will seek his second national clay court tennis championship this afternoon at the River Forest Tennis club when he meets Gardner Mulloy of Miami, Fla.

Parker won his first clay court title in 1933. It will be the second consecutive appearance of Mulloy in the finals. He was beaten five sets by Bobby Riggs of Chicago last year.

To reach the final, Parker, a former member of the United States Davis cup squad, turned in a straight set victory over his doubles partner Gene Mako of Los Angeles yesterday. The scores were 6-3, 9-7, 6-0.

Mulloy, seeded fourth and ranked eleventh nationally, advanced to the final by eliminating Wayne Sabin of Portland, Ore., 7-5, 6-0, 6-3.

After reaching the final yesterday, Parker teamed with Mako to go into the doubles final against Sabin and Johnny Doeg of Newark, N. J. They defeated Ted Olewine of Santa Monica, Cal., and Ernest Sutter of New Orleans, La., 7-5, 6-2, 6-0.

Doeg and Sabin whipped Mulloy and Charles Mattman of New York, 7-5, 6-8, 6-3, 10-8.

CUBS PURCHASE .364 HITTER FOR $35,000, PLAYER

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 25.—(AP)—Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga club in the Southern association, today announced the sale of Bill Nicholson, outfielder, to the Chicago Cubs for $35,000 and one player.

Nicholson must be delivered to the Cubs by Aug. 1. The name of the player who will come to Chattanooga next spring was not announced.

The 210 pound outfielder has a .364 batting average. He has hit eleven home runs, nineteen doubles and seven triples, and driven in fifty-one runs.

Engel obtained Nicholson from the Philadelphia Athletics, getting $30,000 and Nicholson for Dee Miles, now a regular with the Athletics. Nicholson was recommended to the Cubs by their scout, Jack Doyle.

GLEESON LEADS ATTACK WITH TWO DOUBLES

Drives In Winning Runs.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Claude Passeau, former Philly, and Walter Kirby Higbe, former Cub, two able pitching gents who swapped uniforms on May 29, hooked up yesterday, each in quest of his fifth victory. Passeau was the successful fellow, the Cubs squirming to a 4 to 3 victory.

Until Higbe staggered a bit in the sixth, he seemed in a fair way to heap more coals on Manager Gabby Hartnett's head. With memories of Saturday's game still fresh, a game won, 1 to 0, on a homer by Joe Marty who went to Philadelphia with Higbe in the Passeau deal, the tailenders seemed to be breezing to a 2 to 1 success through the fifth inning.

The Cubs made only three hits off Higbe in the first five innings, the first of them Augie Galan's second homer which tied the score in the first inning. The other two were wasted.

Wildness Is Costly.

When Higbe struck out Stan Hack at the start of the sixth, he had shown no signs of his weakness, wildness. He hadn't walked or hit a batsman. Then came the long awaited fit. Bill Herman was hit by a pitched ball. Galan singled for the fourth Chicago hit. Carl Reynolds and G. Russell both walked to force home the tying run. Then Jim Gleeson, who might have gone to Philadelphia instead of Marty if the Phillies hadn't been stubborn, banged his second double. This drove in the last two Cub runs, both of which they had to have to win.

The Cubs made only seven hits off Higbe, who went all the way for the Phillies. This gave them a grand total of nine for the two week-end games with the Phillies and a grand total of eighteen for the three game series. Pretty light tapping on which to win two games out of three in a series.

Gain on Reds.

The game ended the second 1939 invasion by eastern teams. In their stand against the easterners, the Cubs lost three straight to the Giants and ran their homecoming losing streak to four by dropping one to Brooklyn. Dizzy Dean and Hartnett then started a six game winning streak which ended Saturday when Marty's homer and two hit pitching by Hugh Mulcahy derailed the champs momentarily. The record for the home stand was five losses, seven victories, and one tie, the tie in a rainswept game in which a Cub victory was kicked away just before a cloudburst.

The Cubs yesterday moved a game nearer the league leading Reds, whom they now trail by six games. A week ago yesterday noon they were 10½ games behind the leaders. Trouble is the Giants, who thrashed the Cubs seven times before they were hot, seem to be sizzling.

They Start Even.

The Phillies scored in the first inning on a single and a triple and the Cubs matched it in their half with a homer. With one out, Mueller singled to center and went to second on Scott's infield out. Arnovich dumped a hit back of first and when G. Russell, in hot pursuit, made a pass at the ball, it caromed for a triple, Mueller scoring. Marty flied to Reynolds.

In the Cubs' half of the first, Hack and Herman went out on gentle infield taps, but Galan socked his second home run of the year into the right field bleachers. Reynolds then bounced to May.

The Cubs, who have almost as much trouble defending themselves against bunts as they do in making them,

ATHLETICS LOSE FIRST, THEN WIN FROM INDIANS

Chapman, Trosky, Heath Hit Homers in Row.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 25.—(AP)—The Athletics divided two games with Cleveland today before 19,392 fans—the largest crowd of the year at Shibe park—winning the second game, 10 to 2, after losing the first, 8 to 4. The Indians unleashed a home run assault in the seventh inning to win the first game. With two out, Ben Chapman, Hal Trosky, and Jeff Heath hit Buck Ross for consecutive circuit drives. The feat has been accomplished only eight times previously in the major leagues. Johnny Allen was the winning pitcher.

Cubs Defeat Higbe and Phillies, 4-3

allowed the Phillies to bunt in a run from second to go ahead in the second inning. May opened with a double, advanced to third on Young's sacrifice, and scored while Passeau and G. Russell, with Herman trying to help out, wrestled with Millies' bunt. It was the 14th bunt the Phillies had executed against the Cubs this year. Six were sacrifices and seven times both the batter and the runner to be advanced were safe. Only once was there a forceout.

Gleeson Finds Range.

In the Cub half of the second, the Phillies stopped Gleeson at third after he had doubled with one out. Gleeson's shot was a hard one against the wall in deep left center. He was obliged to hold second while Bartell tapped out to May, but got to third on a wild pitch. Mancuso then flied to Arnovich.

Both sides went out in order in the third inning, but the visitors stirred up a threat in the fourth. May singled, paused while Young flied to Galan, then took third on Millies' single to center, Millies proceeding to second on a throw to third. Higbe struck out.

Here's the record of Higbe's distress in the sixth: The inning opened with Hack being called out on strikes. Herman was hit by a pitched ball and stopped at second on Galan's second and the team's fourth hit, a single to center. Reynolds received Higbe's first pass, filling the bases. G. Russell walked after a three and two count, forcing in Herman to tie the score 2 to 2. Gleesor knocked his second double, a liner to right, scoring Galan and Reynolds. Bartell was given an intentional pass, loading the bases, after which Mancuso hit into a double play, Mueller to Young to Bolling.

Bartell Helps Phils.

The Phillies moved up to within one run of a tie after two were out in the eighth. Scott doubled to left and scored when Bartell picked up Arnovich's grounder and threw it into the crowd on the wing back of the Philly dugout. None of the spectators was seriously injured, but Arnovich was waved to second with the potential tying run. Marty, however, ended the threat with a fly to Galan.

With one out in the ninth Martin batted for Young and singled to right. Millies popped to Bartell, and the game ended when Martin went out trying to steal second, Mancuso to Herman.

Cincinnati, O., June 25.—(AP)—The onrushing New York Giants made it three straight over the Cincinnati Reds here today by a 3 to 2 victory behind the eight hit pitching of Harry Gumbert. It was the first time the Reds had failed to take one contest in a three game series.

Zeke Bonura tripled in the second inning and scored on Jimmy Ripple's double. Ripple scored on a passed ball. With two out in the third Mel Ott reached second on a wild throw and scored on Bonura's single. Ernie Lombardi, who received a shotgun in pregame ceremonies, made two hits to score both Cincinnati runs. His single in the second inning scored Frank McCormick, who had doubled, and in the third Lombardi's safety scored Bill Werber.

YANKS ANNOUNCE JULY 4 WILL BE LOU GEHRIG DAY

New York, June 25.—(AP)—July 4 will be Lou Gehrig day at Yankee stadium with the champions meeting Washington in a double-header.

Yankee officials announced selection of the date today and said they would have a little gift for Gehrig from the management and players.

Gehrig is suffering from a form of chronic infantile paralysis which forced him to abandon active exercise, although he still is appearing in uniform daily. He withdrew from first base May 2 after playing 2,130 consecutive games from June, 1925.

COLLEGE GOLF STARS TO OPEN TOURNEY TODAY

Team Title Will Be Settled by Tomorrow.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., June 25.—The national intercollegiate golf tournament, which for forty-one years has been the No. 1 incubator for some of America's best swingers, will open tomorrow at the Wakonda Country club here. For those forty-one years the collegians' main event has been conducted under the auspices of the United States Golf association. The 1939 tournament marks a change in sponsorship, for it will be the first to be run by the National Collegiate Athletic association. It also is the first of these reunions of the young men from our best campuses to be held this far west. Heretofore, Chicago has been the boundary line for the intercollegiate tournament.

The tournament's history from its inception reads very much like the career of American football. Once a Yale-Harvard-Princeton dynasty, it has now become one of the all-embracing events in college competition.

44 Schools Enter Players.

Forty-four schools have entered a total of more than 225 players. The central states' main representation will come from the western conference and Notre Dame. The Irish, perennial contenders for the team title, will send out a strong squad headed by Capt. Tom Sheehan. Every one of the Big Ten schools has entered a team. The No. 1 conference hope is Northwestern, which won the Big Ten team title for the second time in three years last month. The Wildcats, headed by Sophomore Chase Fannon, individual champion this year, and Senior Sid Richardson, winner in 1937 and 1938, will be striving to become the second Big Ten squad in the tournament's history to win the team crown. Michigan triumphed in 1934 and 1935.

Tomorrow the field will do eighteen holes of medal play and another eighteen on Tuesday. These thirty-six holes not only will decide the team championship, but also will serve as the qualifying round for match play in the individual competition. The low thirty-two scorers will open man-to-man fighting on Wednesday with two eighteen hole rounds.

Playoff in Case of Tie.

Each school may be represented in the team title battle by from four to six players, who were designated as team men at the time their entry was filed. The team returning the lowest aggregate foursome score for the thirty-six holes of medal play will be awarded this title. In the event of a tie an eighteen hole playoff will be arranged at the convenience of the teams involved.

Thirteen of last year's thirty-two qualifiers are back to renew the individual struggle. These include the four semi-finalists, John Burke of Georgetown, the defending champion; Bert McDowell of Louisiana State, the runner-up; Bob Babbish of Detroit, holder of the western amateur crown, and Lewis Oehmig of Virginia. Henry Costillo of Louisiana State, a 1938 quarter-finalist, also is back.

The teams entered:

Amherst, University of Baltimore, Beloit, Bradley Tech, University of California, University of Chicago, University of Cincinnati, Colgate, Dartmouth, Detroit, Duke, Grinnell, Georgetown, Harvard, Indiana, Iowa, Iowa State, Kansas, Louisiana State, Marquette, Michigan, Michigan State, Minnesota, Missouri, Northwestern, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Pittsburgh, Princeton, Purdue, Southern California, Stanford, Swarthmore, Texas, Tulane, West Point Military academy, Vanderbilt, Virginia, Washington university of St. Louis, Mo.; Western Michigan State Teachers college, Wisconsin, Yale, Illinois.

Des Moines, Ia., June 25.—Johnny Pacek, 1933 Chicago Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, fourteen months ago made his debut in this town, an unknown preliminary boxer, using the name of Johnny Paycheck. He was the talk of the town as he ended his training in Uptown gymnasium yesterday afternoon for the biggest test of his five year professional campaign—a ten round bout against Maurice Strickland of New Zealand in League park tomorrow night.

If successful, Johnny will be ready for the Tony Galentos, Bob Pastors, Lou Novas, and Gunnar Barlunds.

Des Moines folk who have followed Johnny's career since he adopted this city as his home, are more excited than ever before over a fight. As a result, Promoter Pinkie George predicts that more than 8,000 will contribute in excess of $10,000. Such a gate would be one of the largest in Iowa fight history.

Leonard Will Be Referee.

An added attraction will be the appearance of Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, as referee. He will work one of the preliminary matches. Alex Fidler will officiate in the windup.

Paycheck did only light loosening up exercises yesterday. After the workout he weighed 192, the poundage he expects to carry tomorrow. This is the weight at which Johnny fought when he scored a five round knockout over Frank Rowsey last May 22. He followed up this victory by knocking out Bill Davis in Waterloo, June 8. The triumph over Davis was Paycheck's twenty-third consecutive victory.

Comiskey Meets Dawson.

Edward Patrick Comiskey, Patterson, N. J., heavyweight, who has gained a reputation of sorts as a knockout puncher, will meet Clem Dawson of Barberton, O., in a six round semi-final. Preliminary matches:

Billy Hill vs. Happy Graham [6], heavyweights.

Art Katos vs. Chet Jones, Melcher, Ia., [6], 147.

Al Powel vs. John Eggenberger, [4], 160.

Don Millhan vs. Tony Yates [4], 147.

Harry Vogts of Madison, Wis., won both heats in the giant class F division. E. A. Horner of Brighton, Ia., took class B as Wearly went out on the first heat because of wet sparkplugs.

Kid Berg Boxes Aron Tonight in Marigold Arena

Jackie [Kid] Berg, Whitechapel, England, veteran, will meet Milt Aron, young Chicago welterweight challenger, in a ten round bout tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. It will be Berg's first Chicago appearance since he was dethroned as junior welterweight champion by Tony Canzoneri in the Stadium eight years ago.

Aron must win to maintain his position as No. 8 contender. After being defeated by Sammy Angott, second leading lightweight, in the Coliseum last May 3, the National Boxing association selection committee demoted Milt. Another setback will shove the Chicagoan out of the first ten.

In the five round semi-windup Al Globe, El Paso light heavyweight, will face Bob Ray of Decatur. Preliminary matches of four rounds bring together Rex Thomas and Bob Fertig, Frankie Agnes and Eu Eulien, Jimmy Santora and Joe Ojida.

The show will be held in the outdoor arena, unless weather prevents.

Leo Rodak's scheduled ten round contest against Joey Silva in Washington, D. C., tonight has been canceled because Silva sustained a cut eye in a fight last week. . . . Jackie Berg is asking $1,500 for a contest with Sammy Angott in Pittsburgh July 17. Angott boxes Cowboy Howard Scott of Washington in Louisville this evening.

A boxing team from the Inland Steel company of East Chicago will appear on the amateur boxing show in the Rainbow Fronton outdoor arena tonight. In the two five round bouts Mike Sopko of the Inland team meets George Dion of Kankakee, and Al Capalby faces Dan Brown, 160-pounder from Morgan Park.

Gale IV., Harry G. Nye Jr.'s newest star class sloop, won the Chicago Star fleet's series of eliminations yesterday off Belmont harbor. Nye sailed his yacht to victory in all three races of the series. Sawbones, sailed by Bert Williams and Dr. Stanley Fahlstrom, was runner up in both races. Tempel Smith and Russell Moon's Delight was third in the two races. Total scores at the series' end were Gale, 24; Sawbones, 19; Delight, 18.

Milton Friend Jr. won major honors in the Columbia Yacht club's class B Frostbite dinghy race off Grant park harbor yesterday. Jack Holbrook was second in the five races held. Frank Heyes, sailing Henry Rubinkam's class X dinghy, won over Shirley Emerman. Douglas Palm sailed Foo, Mrs. Fran Byrne's Frostbite dinghy to first place in the Jackson Park Yacht club's five races off Jackson park outer harbor yesterday.

Bunny Austin, Asboth Clash at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England, June 25.—(AP)—Britain's international tennis tournament will open tomorrow at the All England Lawn Tennis club with a storybook match between H. W. [Bunny] Austin, the favorite, and a young Hungarian, Joseph Asboth. Asboth is a boy from the Hungarian countryside who started playing tennis a few years ago with a homemade racket and is already good enough to furnish a climax for Wimbledon. However, officials find no standout successor to Donald Budge, who won last year.

Bunny Austin and Bobby Riggs have been seeded one-two in the men's singles, but recent defeats suffered by both—in the Queen's club tournament—haven't added to their stature. Because of these upsets, Don McNeill of Oklahoma, who beat Riggs to win the French championship, is in the limelight, but he hardly stands head and shoulders above the field, as Budge did last year.

Equipped with a magnificent forehand drive, Asboth is getting a shot at Austin while Bunny is still shaky after almost a year without serious competition. Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., and the Frenchman, Chrisian Boussus, meet in another opening day match. Boussus is a veteran of the center court and many believe he is good enough to defeat the aggressive young American. The third promising match is between Jacques Brugnon and the British Davis cup player, F. H. D. Wilde.

Bobby Riggs will appear on the center court against J. Dhamija, and McNeill, who is gaining favor in the betting odds, meets Kaschnet.

ST. MARY STAR PITCHES NO-HIT, NO-RUN VICTORY

Ed Goralski, pitcher for St. Mary parish [Cicero], pitched a no hit no run game against Sacred Heart at 52d avenue and 29th place, Cicero, yesterday in the junior division of the C. Y. O. league. St. Mary won, 6 to 0. Goralski fanned twenty.

St. Hyacinth is the only unbeaten team in the league. It defeated St. Viator, 11 to 6, in Kilbourn park yesterday. Walter Walkowicz yielded seven hits in winning his fourth game of the season.

St. Adrian, former C. Y. O. champion, scored a 10 to 3 triumph over St. Barnabas. St. Adrian now leads the south division with four victories and one setback. Other scores:

St. Paul, 3; St. Roman, 2.
Holy Rosary, 5; St. Susanna, 4.
St. Cecelia, 13; Good Shepherd, 9.

Bass Turns Out to Be Dogfish After Battle

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kangaroo Lake, Wis., June 25.—A good sized fish that rose to the surface like a large mouthed black bass turned the laugh on us last night when we were fooling the bass in this lake. Lee Thorp, our fishing partner, first noticed the way this particular fish was breaking water about 400 yards from us. It was close to eight o'clock in the evening and the lake was as smooth as glass.

Ahead of us in an open stretch of water we could see what we thought was a big bass having a swell time coming to the surface to swat a bug and send countless little riffles through that pool which was lighted up by the setting sun.

We began to strip line from our reel, gradually lengthening our false casts to reach the spot where we thought this big bass must be. Then we dropped the lure on the water. No strike. We made another cast and worked the lure a little. No strike. Thorp suggested a cast a little to the right. We did that and all the time we were thinking what fun it would be to tie into a 4 pounder as a climax to the evening because the two of us already had hooked and returned to the water our limits of nice sized bass.

Then the fish that we had been stalking struck. We saw him swimming to take it. We set the hook and the scrap was on. Instantly we knew we had a hefty fish. It took our line, threshed on the surface and put up a swell fight. But no jumps from it.

Then we worked it in closer to the canoe. We were getting suspicious of the identity of this bass. When we saw its shape as it swam past the canoe we could tell that it was a big dog fish! When we finally subdued it after a real scrap [the dog fish is no piker on the end of a line] we found that it weighed better than four pounds.

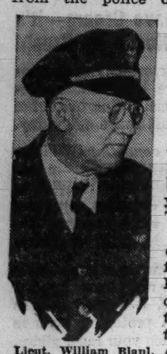
LIEUT. BLAUL, 72, DIES; CAPTOR OF CAR BARN GANG

Retired Police Veteran Has Heart Attack.

Lieut. William V. Blaul, who retired from the police department three years ago after forty-four years of service, died of a heart attack in his home yesterday. Lieut. Blaul was known particularly for his capture of the notorious car barn bandits thirty-six years ago. He was 72 years old.



Lieut. William Blaul.

He was deputy chief of detectives from 1932 to 1934. He also was chief of the state's attorney's detectives under John A. Swanson and for a year was in charge of special investigations under former United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson.

He was cited many times for bravery and competency and received the Carter H. Harrison medal for bravery for the capture of the car barn bandits.

Examiner for Private Detectives.

Since his retirement Lieut. Blaul had been an examiner for private detectives for the state board of registration and education.

Lieut. Blaul had been living with his daughter, Mrs. Ella Deutsche, at 5753 North Talman avenue. He was stricken just after he finished his Sunday dinner. A physician and a fire department inhalator squad were summoned but he was dead when they arrived.

He is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Edna Chapman; a sister, Mrs. Louise Awe; a brother, Charles, and two grandchildren. His wife died four years ago.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the chapel at 3905 Lincoln avenue. Burial will be in St. Lucas cemetery.

Bandits Hanged for Murder.

The car barn bandits, who were captured through the detective work of Lieut. Blaul, were Harvey Van Dine, Peter Niedermeier, and Gustave Marx. They were hanged for the murder of two men in the robbery of the car barns at 61st and State streets in August, 1903.

Marx was captured first and gave information that his companions were hiding in a shack in the sand dunes near Miller, Ind. Lieut. Blaul and eight detectives surrounded the place but were discovered by the bandits before they could effect the capture.

The bandits fired on the detectives, killing one and wounding several others. They fled and were followed to a corn field several miles away. Reënforcements were sent by Chicago police and Indiana authorities. The bandits were captured after more than 100 police surrounded the field.

4 CHICAGOLAND RESIDENTS LOSE LIVES IN LAKES

Swimmer Drowns at 49th Street Beach.

Three Chicagoans and a Berwyn man lost their lives in drowning accidents yesterday. Two of them drowned in Lake county, one in Wisconsin, and one in Lake Michigan.

The victims were Benjamin Labuo, 21 years old, 2657 Potomac avenue; Oliver Buckley, 15, of 6725 May street; Joseph Beil, 24, of 2423 Homan avenue, and Jerry Cap, 22, of 6206 Roosevelt road, Berwyn.

Cap's drowning occurred at a picnic of several hundred employés of Charles A. Stevens & Co., on the estate of Elmer T. Stevens at Delavan Lake, Wis.

Three Companions Rescued.

Cap and three companions were thrown into deep water 300 feet off shore when their rowboat capsized. He sank immediately, and may have been a victim of heart shock instead of drowning, officials said. His companions, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Borovicka and Mrs. Mary Prinda, all of Berwyn, were rescued by James Anderson and Charles Cameron of Delavan in a speedboat.

Beil drowned in Lake Michigan off the 49th street breakwater in sight of hundreds of bathers, including his sister, Julia, 14. His body was recovered by a friend, Stanley Hradeo, 20, of 2614 South Troy street. An inhalator squad worked nearly an hour in a vain effort to revive him.

The Buckley boy sank in Tower lake, two miles west of Wauconda, in Lake county, as he, his brother Edward, 20, and Paul Gross, 22, of 3319 Long avenue, were attempting to swim a quarter of a mile to the opposite shore. The brother and Gross dived repeatedly before they recovered his body.

Sinks in Deep Water.

The death of Labno occurred at Cedar lake near Lake Villa, also in Lake county. He was swimming in deep water, 600 feet off shore, when he sank. Friends swimming with him did not notice he had disappeared until it was too late to rescue him.

Coast guards yesterday dragged the lake off Montrose avenue for the body of Edward Russell Hunt, 23, of Fulton, Ill., who is believed to have drowned Friday while swimming. His clothes and car were found nearby.

BOY COLLECTOR SHOOTS BROTHER IN GUN ACCIDENT

George Busch Jr., 15 years old, collects old weapons. But when he came home with a .38 caliber revolver he had bought from a classmate at Austin High school, his father thought that the gun was too dangerous and ordered him to return it. The revolver was still in the Busch home at 4705 Huron street last night when George's parents went to the theater. They did not know that George had a cartridge for it.

The boy began oiling the gun. His brother, Donald, 8, looked on. By accident the weapon was discharged. The bullet struck Donald, inflicting a chest wound that was considered critical at St. Anne's hospital. Detectives Edward Targe and Robert Rinearson questioned John Englebert, 14, of 4849 Iowa street, to whom they traced the weapon. He said he found it in a vacant house and sold it to George for $2 through another boy.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

DUTCH BANKER WARNS NATIONS OF DEBT ABYSS

Economic Tinkering, Deficits Lashed.

New York, June 25.—[Special.]—Too many artificial and unsound policies that are being followed by governments all over the world make the economic outlook an unfavorable one, Dr. L. J. A. Trip, leading banker and economist of The Netherlands and former president of the Bank for International Settlements, said today. He expressed his views in his annual report as president of The Netherlands bank.

L. J. A. Trip.

Beginning with a reference to the race in armaments, which, he said, was forcing the various governments to borrow almost $1,060,000,000 a month to cover their budgetary deficits, Dr. Trip said economic revival and monetary stability are unthinkable unless international political relations improve, the fear of war is banished and armaments are reduced.

Strikes at Trade Restrictions.

A new world war, he said, would have annihilating consequences and would lead to such chaos that the present day powers would not survive. In these circumstances the economic, financial, and monetary future is decidedly uncertain, he declared.

Next in importance to the armaments race as a factor governing the economic outlook Dr. Trip placed the increasing tendency of the nations toward isolation as a result of measures to stimulate exports and restrict imports.

Cites Resort to Spending.

"In the beginning," he said, "it was expected that a lowering of the gold value of monetary units would lead to a corresponding rise in commodity prices, while a policy of cheap money and expansion of credit was to stimulate private enterprise.

"When this expectation was not fulfilled and the policy would apparently not yield the desired results, refuge was taken in a great increase in governmental expenditures, which caused budget deficits to grow rapidly.

"It was supposed that this would make private business revive in a relatively short time, and that the governments would then be able to reduce their intervention within the limits of their revenue. This expectation was not realized, either.

Sees No Aid in Cheap Money.

"The result was that the levels of government expenditure and budget deficits were maintained and even raised on the assumption that, in this way, the national income and prosperity would increase."

Remarking that this depreciation of currencies, cheap money, increase of government expenditure and growing budgetary deficits were taking on a more and more permanent character, Dr. Trip said he could not see that the development had led to any lasting improvement, or that it was reasonable to suppose it could be carried on much longer.

Argentine Cut in Trade Hurts America Most

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, June 25.—[Special.]—The United States continues to bear the brunt of the sharp decline in Argentina's import trade which has been intentionally brought about by the Argentine government through restrictive measures. The purpose of the drive was to bring imports more nearly into line with exports.

Trade statistics for the first five months of this year, published today, show that imports from the United States declined by 32.4 per cent, as compared with the corresponding period last year.

Drop Is 37 Million Pesos.

Imports from the United States this year up to the end of May were valued at 75 million pesos, compared with 111 million pesos on the same date last year. [The peso is 23 cents.] This is a decline of 36 million pesos for the five months.

The United States' share in Argentina's import trade declined from 18.7 per cent last year to 15.2 per cent this year, while both Great Britain and Germany increased their shares of the total. The British share increased to 21 per cent from 19 per cent, and Germany's share rose to 12 per cent from 10 per cent.

The government has succeeded in decreasing total import trade by 19.8 per cent, compared with last year.

Exports Exceed Imports.

Total imports in the first five months of the year were valued at 514,409,000 pesos, compared with 641,729,000 in the corresponding period last year.

As a result of the restrictive measures against imports, Argentina had an excess of exports over imports for the period amounting to 130,795,000 pesos, compared with an excess of imports over exports amounting to 35,578,000 pesos in the 1938 period. The value of exports for the five months was 645,204,000 pesos, compared with 606,151,000 in the corresponding period last year, which was an increase of 6.4 per cent.

Industry Pace Holds Steady in Last Month

Industrial production trends varied in the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district during May, but averaged about the same as in April, George J. Schaller, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, reported yesterday. Margins of gain over 1938 remained large, he said.

Steel mill operations in the district quickened late in May, but had declined somewhat by mid-June, Schaller's survey said.

"With strikes and the holiday holding up production, the manufacture of automobiles declined moderately in May," it continued. "Subsequently schedules were increased, partly because May demand for cars over the country proved better than expected.

Auto Sales Hold Up Well.

"Sales of new cars in the district declined less than seasonally in May, and used car sales were up about 10 per cent.

"Although incoming business at paper mills continued to decline, production increased moderately. Petroleum refining held up well in May, and gasoline prices were somewhat firmer in early June.

"Trends in district building construction have been generally good for most of 1939, but in May contracts awarded recorded no more than a fractional rise over April and were only 4 per cent larger than in 1938. Residential construction continued to make favorable showings."

Employment Shows Decline.

Industrial employment at mid-May was down 2 per cent as compared with a month earlier, the report said, and pay rolls declined 3 per cent. The declines were attributed chiefly to lowered schedules in the automobile industry. The average for industries other than automobile manufacturing showed little change in employment or pay rolls.

The report showed the following other changes:

Department store sales in May were 3 per cent larger than in April and 15 per cent larger than in the 1938 month. Department store inventories declined, and at the end of May were 6 per cent lighter than on May 31, 1938. Trends in wholesale distribution for most lines were "distinctly favorable," with May sales of reporting groups rising 12 per cent as compared with April.

Demand Deposits Larger.

On June 14 demand deposits at reporting member banks were 100 million dollars larger than the total of four weeks earlier. Investment portfolios expanded 4 million dollars in the same period, as banks increased holdings of short term treasury securities.

The volume of new financing through sale of securities increased during May.

Grain prices strengthened during the month. Meat packing output in the nation was the largest for any May since that of 1934. Inventories of meat products continued to be below average.

Schaller said there were reports of improved consumer demand in many fields and that June industrial output should be at least as large as in May.

Greater Chicago Campaign Workers Meet Tomorrow

The 750 volunteers who are attempting to raise $625,000 to finance the Greater Chicago campaign will report on their progress at a meeting at the Palmer House tomorrow. The amount pledged by business enterprises up to noon last Friday was $420,000. Less than a week remains for the budget drive. The Chicago Association of Commerce is leading the Greater Chicago campaign, the object of which is to quicken business, stimulate building, and persuade more industries to locate in the city.

Steel Output Is Expected to Hold at Present Level

Fairly steady steel production is indicated for the next two weeks, but the outlook after that period remains somewhat indefinite, the magazine Steel said yesterday. Ingot production last week advanced 2 points to 54.5 per cent of capacity. Mills are taking further steps to ward correcting price irregularities which have prevailed for several months, the publication said. Scrap markets have quieted. Steel's scrap composite price held at $14.62 a ton.

SILVER FORCES DRAW GUNS TO RAID TREASURY

Demand Roosevelt Deliver.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 25.—[Special.]—The silver state senators completed plans tonight to hold up the treasury stage coach this week.

Senator McCarran, silverite leader.

With the aid of the agrarian paper money inflationists the silver state senators, in a series of concerted moves, will call on the Roosevelt administration to stand and deliver a higher price than the treasury is now paying for newly mined domestic silver. If Mr. Roosevelt refuses to shell out the silver state senators and their allies, say their leaders, will ditch both the monetary legislation and the 1940 relief appropriation bill.

Powers Expire July 1.

The President's existing money manipulation powers expire at midnight next Friday. They include the power to devalue the dollar further from the present 59 per cent to 50 per cent of the former value, to maintain the 2 billion dollar fund for stabilization of the dollar in foreign exchange, and to purchase domestic silver at a price above its market value as a base for currency.

Pending in the senate is a bill passed by the house extending these powers for two years. It is being opposed by the Republicans and conservative Democrats on the ground that the potential further inflation represented by the currency manipulation powers hinders recovery.

So eager is the President, however, to get these powers continued that the silver state senators calculate he will surrender to their demands for more money for the silver interests to keep them from talking the extension bill to death Friday night.

Also Deadline for Relief.

If the money manipulation powers should lapse Friday night it would be necessary for the administration to initiate such legislation all over again. Then the advantage would pass to the opponents and the President might find it impossible to get any but the stabilization fund powers renewed at this session.

Friday midnight is also the deadline for the relief appropriation. The house has passed a bill appropriating 1 billion 735 million dollars for relief of the unemployed during the fiscal year beginning next Saturday. The bill is still before a senate appropriations subcommittee, which does not expect to get it to the senate floor before Tuesday. If it should not be passed by Saturday the administration would have in hand funds for relief sufficient for barely a week.

Relief Situation Critical.

So critical is the situation with respect to relief funds that Senator Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.], majority leader of the senate, contemplates laying aside the monetary bill if necessary, in order to expedite action on the relief bill, although such procedure would help the silverites' filibuster of the monetary legislation.

The first showdown of the silver states' holdup of the treasury will come at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow, when the senate by previous agreement will vote on the Pittman amendment to the monetary bill fixing $1.27 an ounce as the price the treasury will pay for newly mined domestic silver. Under the expiring act authorizing the President to fix the price, the treasury is paying 64.64 cents an ounce for silver. The world market price is 41 cents.

Strategy Is Mapped.

Senator Pat McCarran [D., Nev.], leader of the silverites' filibuster, indicated today that he expects defeat of the Pittman amendment. But he is then prepared to press his own amendment for a price of $1.04 an ounce. If the administration should refuse to surrender to that demand an amendment to fix the price at 77 cents will be offered.

If necessary other moves will be made to find the administration's price of surrender.

Investors' Guide

Monday, June 26, 1939.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

M'KESSON IN 1939.

Investors' Guide: I'm one of those unfortunate stockholders of McKesson & Robbins who got caught in the Coster-Musica affair last December. I am now trying to keep up on the latest developments of the company, but seem to have slipped up on how its sales have been running so far this year. Are they up or down? —L. C. S.

Answer: William J. Wardall, trustee, has reported sales of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., by months so far in 1939, compared with adjusted sales for the first five months of 1938, as follows:

	1939.	1938.
January	$12,071,121	$12,132,357
February	10,767,730	10,990,128
March	13,127,750	13,025,209
April	11,080,489	11,201,822
May	12,900,748	11,575,270
Total	$59,957,838	$58,924,786

IRON FIREMAN.

Investors' Guide: I have in mind several companies whose stock would appear to offer investment possibilities. One of these is the manufacturer of Iron Fireman stokers. From what I am told and have read it seems that the number of stokers is increasing all the time. What can you tell me about this manufacturer in particular?—D. A. H.

Answer: Iron Fireman Manufacturing company is the largest maker of automatic stokers. These range in size from house heating models to 1,000 horse power boiler capacity. Early this year the company introduced a new coal burning product and a unit space heater. It also announced companion products such as warm air furnaces and controls of all types were being made available. Production and distribution of an oil burner was started in 1938.

The company recently reported that sales during the first two months of this year were about 30 per cent ahead of those for the corresponding period of 1938. Sales reached a peak of $6,500,000 in 1937. The year before the company reported an all time high of $774,000 in net profit. Here's its record in recent years:

	Sales.	Net inc.	Earn per shr.
1938	$5,664,425	$606,901	$1.09
1937	6,838,993	711,460	1.28
1936	5,811,331	774,787	2.16
1935	4,327,807	604,646	2.02
1934	3,185,388	521,708	1.76
1933	2,214,005	330,784	1.69

There are outstanding 359,260 shares of no par capital stock, which is deposited in a voting trust agreement expiring in 1948. Two quarterly dividends of 30 cents each have been paid so far this year to holders of voting trust certificates. Similar payments have been declared payable Sept. 1 and Dec. 1. Payments during 1938 totaled $1.20 a share. The year before a total of $1.50, including an extra of 30 cents, was paid.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

by HOMER CROISZ

Trouble for Haymakers.

June 25, 1939.

HAY harvesters in the Du Page county farm neighborhood ran into more trouble with bad weather last week. Heavy rains delayed hay making and damaged alfalfa that had been cut down and left in the fields to cure. Most of the first cutting of alfalfa has been harvested. Some red clover and timothy has been cut.

Even farmers who were attempting to make green hay into molasses silage had trouble. It is considered safe to put wet. green hay in silos. More and more farmers are turning to hay silage in order to save hay during rainy weather, but fields in some places became so soft that mowers could not be run. Some meadows were so soaked that wagons could not be driven over them to haul out hay that had been cut before the hard rains came.

Silage Settles 8 Feet.

About six loads of alfalfa that was being cured for storage in the hay keeper at Du Page county farm was caught in a downpour on Wednesday. It was the last of the first cutting. Part of it was used to refill the silo that had been filled with alfalfa the previous week. The silage had settled about eight feet.

The men were able to haul the hay out of the wet field by using a tractor and wagon equipped with balloon rubber tires.

The remainder of the wet alfalfa is to be left in the field to dry and then stacked near the cattle feeding lot, where it will be handy for feeding steers next fall. In case the hay is unfit for feed it will be used for bedding.

The first cutting of alfalfa was lighter this year than usual. Lack of rains during the latter part of April and the first week in May apparently cut the crop short. It was only in a valley in a part of one field that the alfalfa grew rank.

Harvesting of red clover and timothy was started last week. About six acres had been cut when rains stopped the mowers. The cut hay still was green when the rains came and was not badly damaged.

Expect Light Oat Crop.

The oat crop at the farm is expected to be light this year. Stands are fairly even, but the plants have made poor growth. The oats are short and are beginning to head out, well ahead of the customary time. While the crop has made some improvement during the last week, the yield of grain likely will be low. The manager said the oats will be high enough to harvest with a combine, but he doubts if it could be successfully cut with a binder and put in shocks on account of the short straw.

Oats have made a poor showing this year over most of Illinois. In some sections farmers are reported to have pastured their oats in the belief that there was little prospect for a crop of grain. Some oat fields have been plowed up and the land sown to soy beans.

J. Y. CENTRAL'S REVENUES CLIMB OVER YEAR AGO

The New York Central railroad yesterday reported that its net railway operating income for May, before fixed charges, totaled $1,688,138, compared with $902,346 in May last year. Net railway operating income for the first five months of 1939 was $6,233,565, compared with a deficit of $814,057 in the 1938 period.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad's net railway operating income in May was $876,626. This was an increase of $35,390 over the $841,236 reported for May, 1938. Net railway operating income in the first five months of 1939 rose to $5,844,338 from $1,132,983 in the corresponding 1938 period.

EASE BURDENS FOR INDUSTRY, IS BANK'S PLEA

Warns of Dangers in Federal Deficits.

New York, June 25.—[Special.]—The only escape from the "vicious circle" of government spending that is heading toward economic chaos lies in the reëstablishment of a sound fiscal policy and the removal of the burdens that have deprived business of its incentive to expand, the Guaranty survey said today.

Points to Lag in Recovery.

The current issue of the monthly review, published by the Guaranty Trust company, discusses the rising government debt and some of its consequences.

"Business, despite the vast amount of public funds spent to stimulate it, has been found to have shown less net progress toward recovery since the low point of the depression than business in any other large country for which reasonably satisfactory data are available," it said.

Ninth Year of Deficits.

"The end of the month will mark the close of the ninth successive year of deficit financing by the federal government. And the outlook is for an indefinite prolongation of the policy of borrowing, spending and lending by the government, with some signs that it will be intensified, rather than moderated, as time goes on."

"The outlook for balancing the budget by further increases in taxation is not promising," the review added.

"Tax rates are already so high that they appear to be exerting a strong deterrent effect on business. Substantial relief must come through reduced expenditures."

Truck Freight Movement Tops Million Tons in May

Washington, D. C., June 25.—(AP)—The American Trucking association reported today the heaviest movement of freight in May for any month since the association began computing figures in 1937. The total was 1,072,301 tons, an increase of 10.7 per cent over April and of 32.7 per cent over May, 1938.

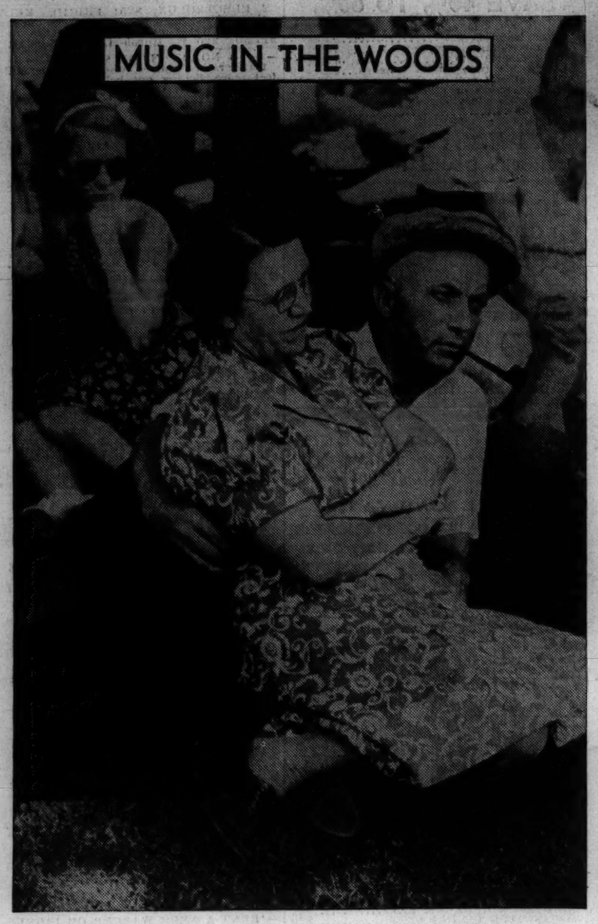
And What Is So Rare as a Day in June?—in Chicago!—How Thousands Spent a Perfect Sunday

MUSIC IN THE WOODS



Yesterday was a perfect outing day for Chicagoans. They could hear concerts in the forest preserves, as Mr. and Mrs. Peter Carr did in Thatcher woods.
[TRIBUNE Photo.] (Story on page 4.)

AT THE ZOO

AMATEUR FLYERS SPREAD THEIR WINGS

They could join 40,000 fellow Chicagoans at Curtiss-Reynolds airport, Glenview, where amateur pilots held their second annual show. There Opal Anderson (left) won a trophy in the women's closed course race, and Mrs. Ellis Eno proudly held the trophy awarded by The Tribune to her husband for being the outstanding pilot.

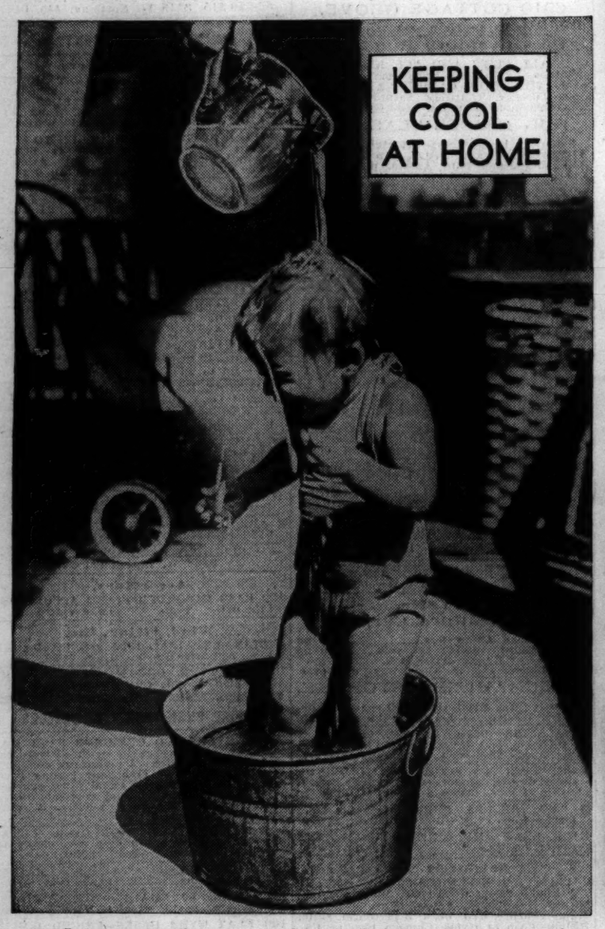
KEEPING COOL AT HOME



It was even fun to stay home. Lorene Steger stood in a tub and felt good as the water trickled over her head.

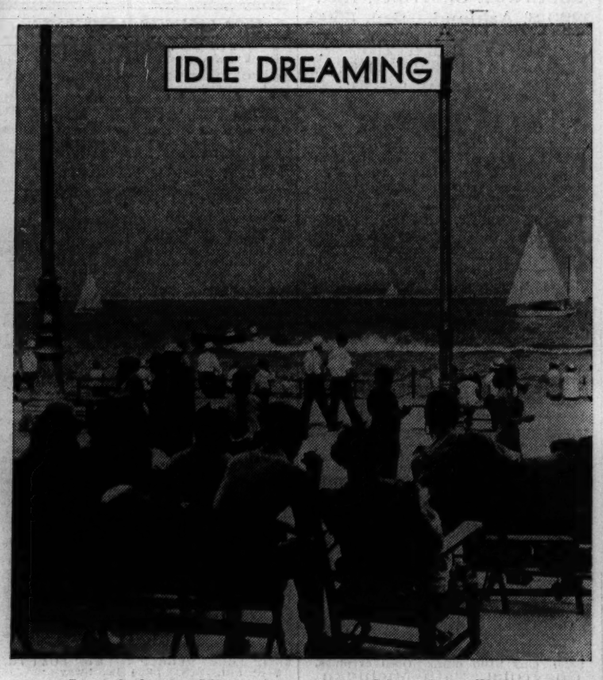
IDLE DREAMING



Just sitting at Navy pier and watching the sailboats drift lazily past was outing enough for many.

With glasses and a movie camera like these Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson had, Chicagoans could catch a closeup of a parachute jumper and take home a record of their outing.

SWIMMING AND SUNNING

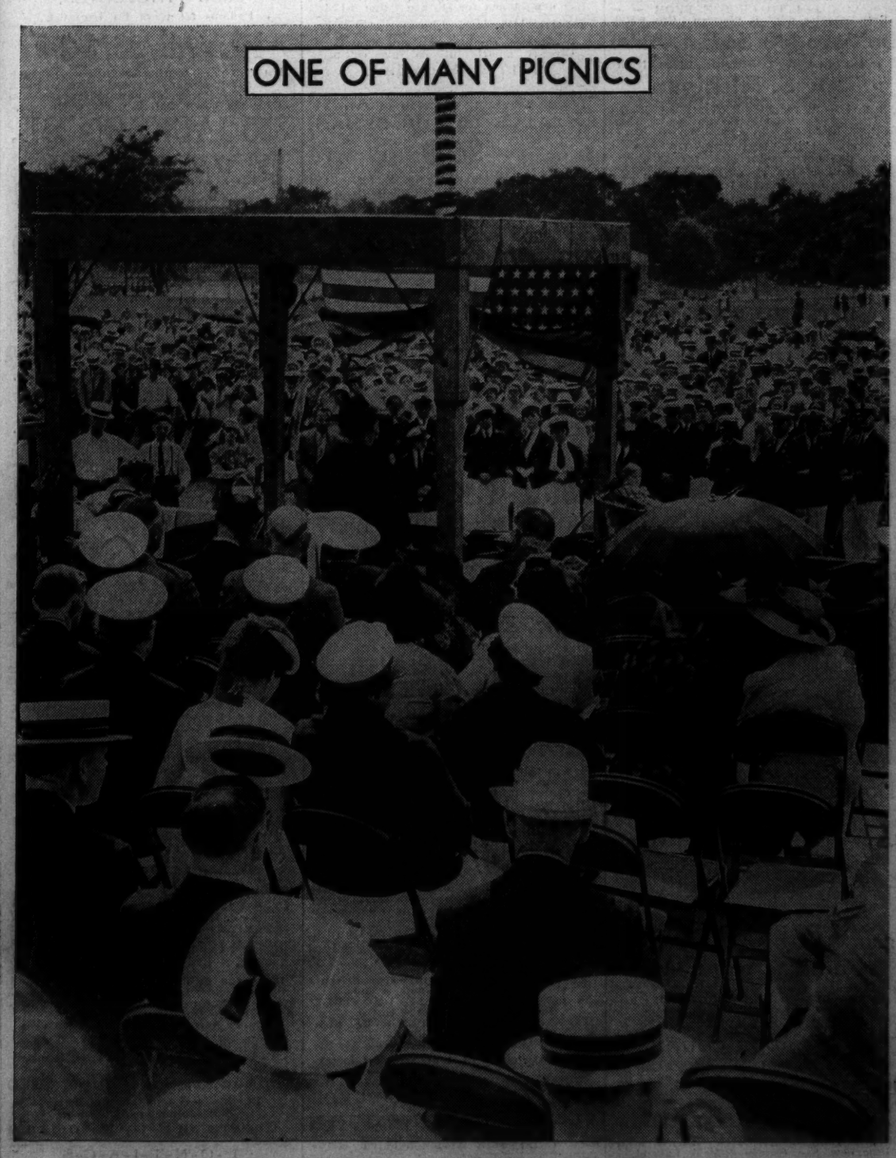
ONE OF MANY PICNICS



They could go to picnics—family groups or large organized affairs. Twenty-five thousand went to a Polish day celebration in Humboldt park. They took their lunches and heard speeches.
